Here's Leadership
Poor Old Lightning
To Discourage Suicide
An Orang-Outang to Teach

—By Arthur Brisbane—

President Harding's proclamation forbidding "interference with transportation" is the most important made by any President of the United States since President Wilson's declaration of war.

The President calls the Labor Board "an agency of government," and attributes force of law to its decisions. This means, unequivocally, COMPULSORY ARBITRATION, with the Labor Board as arbitrator. How important that is business men and workingmen know.

In his fourth "whereas" the President asserts the right of workingmen "to decline to work." This means that whoever chooses may strike, but mustn't interfere with anybody willing to work.

It means also that workingmen of the United States could, if they chose, and with President Harding's official approval, tie up all the railroads and all the business of the country by simply "declining to work."

In the French Republic they have not taken that view of workmen's duty in connection with public necessities. All men of a certain age in France can be called into military service on a minute's notice. When railroad men struck, the French government called them into the army, then put them to work on the railroads as soldiers. If they had refused, they would have been shot for mutiny.

The President's proclamation will soothe those who said he was not willing to "take the responsibility of leadership."

A hundred thousand years ago lightning flashed, your primitive ancestor fell on his face, speechless. Later he built an idol and expressed his feeling roughly, in sacrifices. Today he has that lightning harnessed. It washes his clothes, sweeps his floor, runs his street cars, serves his electric fan, even brushes his boots. To know what a complete slave poor old lighting has become, and how humbled, read this:

A lady in court, where her husband is explaining a murder, sat in a dark corner, pulled out a powder puff, pressed a portable electric bulb, looked in a tiny mirror and powdered her nose. The once dreadful lightning supplied the light to powder that nose. That's a downfall for you.

Ladies and gentlemen are forming a "League to Combat Suicide." They will build a beautiful temple in a grove and invite persons thinking of suicide to come there and talk it over. It's a pretty idea, but should not be necessary.

This world is bright and sunny. And for all we absolutely KNOW, apart from the blessed revelations of faith, the ancient Greeks may be right. Under the earth spirits may find things damp, dark and dreary.

Besides, many interesting things are happening. Everybody should stay and see the happenings.

The writer once, as editor of the New York Evening Sun, years and years ago, conducted a discussion, "Is Suicide a Sin?" The good said, "You ought not to discuss such a thing." Statistics showed suicides diminished by half while the discussion lasted. They wanted to see how it would come out.

The highly civilized State of New York, represented by its Boxing Commission, which regulates highly profitable prize fights, has said that Dempsey, white man, must not refuse to fight Willis, negro. The fight is arranged accordingly.

White and black both weigh more than 200 pounds. It would help civilization if the winner were compelled to get into the ring with an orang-outang weighing about eighty pounds. In about seven seconds there would be an absent-minded orang-outang scratching his ear with his hind hand and an unconscious, much-battered white or black man lying on the ground. Little boys should see that fight and learn how little fighting amounts to.

John Wanamaker, eighty-four years old, gives as his birthday sentiment: "Look up and look forward. Never look down, never look backward. Do not be much looking in, but look out."

French scientists, the serious, not the guessing kind, announced that spots on the sun affect certain chronic diseases, and they can prove it.

We knew that sun spots affected weather and believed that they affected men's nerves. Three great French doctors assert that they affect diseases of

MARILYN MILLER'S OWN STORY

'SALLY'GIRL DEFIES AND ATTACKS ZIEGFELD

Declares Magnate's Hostility Toward Jack Pickford Is Due to Ancient Grudge

By MARILYN MILLER.

Star of "Sally," as dictated to Bert Ford of the Boston American staff and approved by her.

"My counsel, Attorney W. I. Malcvinsky of New York, has letters which Florenz Ziegfeld, my manager, wrote to me. These letters make slanderous allusions to Jack Pickford, who is soon to become my husband, just as attacks were made by Mr. Ziegfeld on my late husband, Frank Carter.

"They will be the basis of any action that emergency may develop.

"Flo Ziegfeld wrote many letters and notes. He signed his name to them. He attacked Jack Pickford in them viciously. He referred to Jack's alleged habits and his alleged fondness for women and a lot of other rot.

ZEIGFELD'S OLD GRUDGE.

"Ziegfeld is nursing an old grudge against Jack Pickford. He has done everything in his power to discredit Jack in my eyes. His attack on Jack is a perfect parallel of his attack on my late husband, Frank Carter, who was killed while driving my car to me in Philadelphia a year after our marriage.

"Ziegfeld's attack on Frank Carter was less conspicuous because Frank was not so widely known as Jack Pickford. But as to both Ziegfeld wasted his spleen. He failed in the case of Frank Carter as he has failed in the case of Jack Pickford. I s'all marry Jack in spite of the ravings and rantings of a regiment of Ziegfelds and am only too eager, too proud and too happy to do so.

"I have suspected at times that I am paying the price for being good. Flo Ziegfeld is a persevering, subtle type. It may be that his attentions were that of a manager who wished to please or flatter his star. The nearest he ever came to making love to me was to pat me on the cheek and to slip his arm around my waist before I could free myself.

ALWAYS WARY OF HIM.

"I have been wary of him from the start. He haunted my dressing room. He flooded it nightly with flowers and candy. He sent similar tokens to my apartments at Hotel Ambassador. I never permitted him to set foot across the threshold of my dressing room, unless my sister, Claire, or my maid dere there, and I never went to his office on business without my mother or sister as chaperon.

"That sums up my social dealings with the man. Mind you, I hate to tell these things. It is against my grain and impulse, but he struck at Jack and me and I shall strike back at him. I do this not in a spirit of vengeance or ingrat-

LOWELL FACES NEW STRIKE IN MILLS

Lowell, July 13.—The Massachusetts Cotton Mills today announced a twenty per cent. cut in wages to take effect on Monday.

Announcement was followed by a statement of textile workers that they would strike rather than accept the cut.

This will make the fourth mill strike underway in the city, workers from mills of the Bay State Cotton Corporation, Merrimac Manufacturing Company, and Hamilton Manufacturing Company, having been on strike for some time against wage reductions.

The Massachusetts Company operates half a dozen mills employing on full running schedule 2,200 men. For two months the force has been cut to 1,500 men.

The four largest mills in the city are still in operation and have announced no cut in wages.

TWO FAWNS CAUGHT BY GRAIN CUTTERS

Martinville, N. J., July 13.—While cutting grain on his farm here, John Logan was startled by a fawn that jumped over the cutting bar to the table of the binder, where it was easily caught. Soon afterward a second fawn appeared.

RELEASE YOUNG FITZGERALD ON DRUNK CHARGE

The case against William F. Fitzgerald, Jr., whose license to operate a motor vehicle was suspended at the request of his father, Boston banker, was dismissed when the youth appeared in Municipal Court today on a defaulted charge of drunkenness.

Young Fitzgerald, who got into the limelight recently in an escapade involving chorus girls and liquor, was arrested a few weeks ago when the car he was driving crashed into another at Berkeley and Marlboro streets, wrecking both machines.

Fitzgerald, Sr., immediately appealed to Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, to suspend his son's license, which Registrar Goodwin did.

Young Fitzgerald, who was a student at Harvard University, figured in the filing of "joke" marriage intentions at the City Hall with Miss Elizabeth Wells, daughter of State Senator Wells.

Allston Woman Fined

For operating an automobile while under the influence or liquor, Mrs. Charlotte Dexter, twenty-five years old, of No. 1334 Commonwealth avenue, was fined $100 in the Brighton court today. Charges of operating an automobile without a license or registration were filed.

NEW SUIT AGAINST GREENE

Wizard Financier Sued for $1,000,000 More; Amazing Career Is Revealed

Henry Vincent Greene, the boy who hopped from the role of soda-jerker to master of millions, today watched the surf at North Scituate foam on to the beach of his Summer estate much as a giant soda spilled to the ground, and, in the midst of contemplating the $14,000,000 suit that crashed over his head within twenty-four hours, suddenly learned that another suit involving a million had been filed in Supreme Court.

But this suit instead of involving 60,000 poor folks who bought stock in Greene's Companies' enterprises was filed against the former ice cream scooper by one of the very children of his brain, the Commercial Finance Corporation.

In it man—smart men— allege, that Henry manipulated stock with baffling wizardry, but always to the profit of Henry Greene.

PERFORMS LIKE WIZARD.

Henry invented stock-selling companies as fast as he did soft drink and sundae concoctions in his soda-jerking days, only ten short years ago.

One of the wizardries of his very fertile brain, wizardries which found 60,000 persons ready to part with hard-earned savings for stock, was the Commercial Finance Corporation, to do a money-lending business.

It was incorporated in 1917, for $2,000,000, assets at the moment being, according to the complaint, but $500.

For underwriting the company, Henry, who once collected $12 per week when the drug store closed on Saturday nights for six weary days at a busy fountain, was paid $100,000 worth of stock.

A year later, it is alleged in the papers of the suit, Henry incorporated the H. V. Greene Company, the parent company for his many subsidiaries, and "without knowledge or consent of the Commercial Finance Corporation, transferred contracts made with that company to the H. V. Greene Company," which was and is practically Henry Greene himself.

CLAIMS $700,000 DUE.

In the manipulation of much stock it is charged $700,000 is due the Commercial Finance Corporation from Henry.

One gets dizzy following Henry's dazzling manipulations.

Wednesday suit for $14,000,000. Today suit for a $1,000,000 and less than a decade ago Henry Vincent Greene was sprinkling nuts on sundaes.

A sallow faced, spectacled young man with a shock of dark hair, one might have paused with suspended scoop of cream and surveyed him as a probable theological student.

But one day in the bubbles of a glass of foamy soda suds Henry Greene saw the pot of gold and there was conveyed to his fertile brain the

VANISHES AT SOUTH STATION

Hyannis Wife, Here to Meet Husband, Drops From Sight

Mrs. Iva May Garrett of Hyannis, who two days ago arrived in the South Station to meet her husband, has mysteriously disappeared. Her husband was not there to meet the train, having been delayed.

Who met her and escorted her from the station?

Her husband does not think she would have left before he arrived as he was not more than a few minutes late.

She was seen getting on the train. Undoubtedly she got off in Boston. Where, then, did she go?

The young wife was not acquainted with Boston. She had been in the city a few times previously, but never alone.

Her husband had been in Philadelphia. He came home on Monday and sent word to the wife to join him in Boston.

"She certainly would have waited for me at the station when she knew I was planning to meet her," is her husband's comment.

"I only wish I knew where to look for her. She has never been in Boston before, alone, and I can't understand where she could have gone. She is a pretty girl and would easily attract attention in a crowd."

The husband, Bennie Garrett, has scoured the city in hopes of finding traces of the wife. He visited the Common, hoping she would be found there. He has inquired at various lodging houses in the city, but to no avail.

GERMAN POLITICS STILL IN UPROAR

By International News Service.

Berlin, July 13.—The defence of the Republic bill was called up in the Reichstag today for final reading. Contrary to outward signs, the political situation is still tense. It has been aggravated by the demand of Independent Socialists for inclusion in a coalition Cabinet. This has caused Chancellor Wirth to telephone to President Ebert to hurry back to Berlin for personal consultations on the political situation.

TROLLEY LINE TO PAY $781,410 ON TAX BILL

New Haven, Ct., July 13.—What is believed to be one of the largest single tax payments in the State will be made Saturday when the Connecticut (trolley) Company will send a check for $781,410.98 to the State treasurer as part payment on taxes due. The company will still owe $1,469,257.77.

FIRE IN PROVIDENCE CAUSES $80,000 LOSS

Providence, July 13.—Fire early today destroyed the wooden warehouse of the National Glass Company at No. 4 Allen's avenue. The blaze was of unknown origin. In the warehouse $40,000 worth of plate glass was destroyed. The total damage was estimated at $80,000.

Let's Go! $2 Buys a Cow and Calf Down in Argentina!

New York, July 13.—Down in Argentina they'll sell you a cow, and even throw in one of its offsprings for $2—about the price a New York housewife has to pay the local butcher for a slab of steak.

So Joseph R. Davis, president of Davis and Co., Ltd., who arrived here from South America, averred in telling about the beef business in the lower continent.

Mr. Davis said they were selling sheep at $1 a head and even less and he couldn't understand why the beef shouldn't be imported into the United States and sold for seven cents a pound, the butcher still coming in for a profit at this price.

2 FREIGHTERS CRASH IN RACE FOR HARBOR

Two huge freighters speeding toward Boston Lightship to pick up pilots to enter the port of Boston collided in a dense fog today.

Although there was a terrific impact and a general shaking up of cargo, no one was injured.

They were towed, limping, into port late today, both with bows caved in.

The vessels were the Nevadan of the American-Hawaiian Line, coming from San Francisco, and the Norwegian freighter Jethon, from Europe.

Steamship inspectors are making an investigation of the accident.

Skipper of the Nevadan is Captain Danforth; of the Jethon, Captain Woxholt. Neither would talk of the accident.

DRY AGENT FORCED TO TESTIFY

Also Loses Petition to Have Commissioner Barred in Rum-Running Case

Dry Agent James P. Roberts and U. S. Commissioner Hayes met in the second round of their battle of technicalities today. Although there were veiled remarks about "hitting below the belt," it was all Commissioner Hayes' round.

Roberts forced the fight at the beginning. He led by walking out of Hayes' courtroom in the midst of a liquor case, alleging that he would not consider the case as adequately heard unless some other commissioner officiated.

Hayes countered with a fine legal jab by sending marshals out to look for Roberts to force him to come back to court.

Roberts got under Hayes' guard then and filed a petition with Federal Judge Julian Mack. It was an extraordinary and precedent-smashing paper.

HAYES NOTIFIED.

Having accused Hayes of being a stumbling block to justice and a few other things, Roberts alleged in his petition that the commissioner was not fit to hear the case against Bryce Elkington and Daniel Young, alleged rum runners. This was the case that Roberts walked out on yesterday.

Roberts charged that [illegible] men were arraigned [illegible] Commissioner Hayes had a personal conversation with them after the hearing, and that he was therefore not competent to hear the case.

The clerk of the Federal Court telephoned Commissioner Hayes and told him about the petition, feeling that he should be advised. Hayes

Few Britons Know the United States, Says Geddes

London, July 12.—Britons do not understand the United States, in the opinion of Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to the United States.

In an address at the Pilgrim banquet he said:

"It is a rare event in my life at the embassy at Washington when I receive a visit from a Britisher who really knows anything worth while about this vast continental country.

"Endless numbers of them go to America to deliver lectures or go begging money. It has been my pleasure to tell such people to keep their mouths shut, give up begging and return home. I have visited forty of the forty-eight States of America and I am free to say I have still a tre' mendous lot to learn."

CARMAN'S FIRST AID SAVES BOY'S LIFE

Prompt action by L. L. Carney, No. 115 Huron avenue, Cambridge, a street car conductor, saved the life of twelve-year-old Marcis Harris, of No. 29 Mayo street, South End. The boy was playing with a knife at the home of Mrs. Mary Rosenthal and cut his arm. Mrs. Rosenthal rushed him to the street and boarded the street car for the Relief Hospital. The child collapsed, Carney stopped the car, ripped down the bell-rope and converted it into a tourniquet. The flow of blood stopped. At the hospital it was said that but for Carney's act the boy might have died.

ELFMAN WOMAN PROUD SHE IS BOOTLEGGER

The family feud of the Elfmans and Segals, both of Bradford street, South End, added twenty degrees to the already high temperature of Municipal Court today.

Louis and Charles Elfman were charged with assault and battery on Louis Segal. Louis Elfman claimed that Segal peached to the police on the Elfman bootlegging establishment. Sergeant John D. McDonald took the stand and said that was not true.

"Yes it is," shouted Elfman, out of order, whereupon he was immediately put in the dock, and both he and his brother Charles sentenced to one month. Charles Elfman forthwith chuckled gleefully, and got another month added to his sentence.

After the case was over, Segal found Rose Elfman, sweet and twenty-three, in the corridor, and told her she was a thief. "I'm not a thief," she shrieked indignantly. I'm a bootlegger, and I'm proud of it."

Sergeant McDonald interposed, and the Elfman-Segal feud adjourned to the outdoors.

SECOND WELSH COAL CARGO FOR BOSTON

The British steamship Eskbridge arrived in port today from Newcastle-on-Tyne with 4,800 tons of Welsh coal. The Eskbridge's cargo is the second ship load of Welsh coal to arrive at this port since the strike, and other cargoes will be sent here if the strike continues. Considerable Nova Scotia coal is also coming in every week. The foreign coal is used largely for the manufacture of gas for domestic uses.

2 Brothers Meet for First Time in Fifty Years

Two brothers who had not seen each other for fifty years, and do not expect to see one another again after their present visit together, visited friends in offices at the State House.

One was F. C. Anderson, an upholsterer, living at No. 82 Brook street, Brookline. The other was A. N. Anderson of San Diego, Cal.

In 1870 the two separated in Stockholm, Sweden, and F. C. Anderson came to Boston, where he made his home. Unknown to him, his brother shortly after went to California, where he since has lived. Recently the California brother learned his brother's Boston address, and came to see him.

The brothers admit that, when their present visit ends, they do not expect to meet again.

POOR DAISY IS NO VAMP, BUT WIVES IS WIVES

New York, July 13 (By International News Service).—This is the sad but true story of a poor but honest manicure lady charged with vamping a sixty-year-old daddy of five sons in the Bronx after dark.

Reel 1—mother Santini, shawl over her head, peers into the becurtained window of Daisy Leroy's manicure shop. Within sits Daddy Santini, the beau of the Bronx—"May the saints protect my innocent husband."

Reel 2—Pretty Daisy, fearing attack on way home by Mother Santini, asks police escort. Policeman John McTaggart assigned for protection. When couple reaches Santini warehouse brick mysteriously describes parabolic curves and lands on pretty Daisy's head.

Mother Santini is seen approaching with two bricks. Five sons seen with bricks. May Santini seen rooting for the honor of family. Sons attack cop as mother pulls pretty Daisy's hair.

Reel 3—Policeman, busted on bean, fails to pavement. Blows whistle for aid. Draws pistol to shoot in air. Friendly enemy grasps weapon. It goes off. Bullet strikes Mother Santini in hip. She emits yells with gusto. Police reserves arrive, accompanied by 5,000 spectators, who shout:

"Kill them cops."

Reel 4—Cops try to do killing instead. Bust some beans. Arrest Daddy Santini—caught in the office admiring the view—and three sons. Mother Santini rushed to the hospital. All Bronx turns out to see sights. Traffic on while Daddy Santini makes speech middle street, shouting, "Daisy was only a friend; nothing more."

Reel 4—Daisy seen running down side street. Reaches home. Turns and shakes fist at angry mob left behind.

"I never tried to vamp him. He was only a business friend." Rage lure royal raiment when worn for virtue's sake.

WARN EMPLOYES NOT TO STRIKE

By the International News Service.

Montreal, July 13.—Mayor Martin today issued a warning that he would call out the militia if the municipal employes, including firemen and policemen, put into effect their threat of a general strike.

"I do not believe that the firemen and policemen will strike, but if they do they will be treated as the striking policemen in Boston and London were treated," said the Mayor.

The Federation of Municipal Employes has served an "ultimatum" upon the Municipal Council setting forth their grievances and their salary demands. It will be taken up at a special meeting tomorrow afternoon.

HOLD "PONZI" IN SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, July 12.—Contrand Cataldo, former manager and president of the National Realty Trust of this city, was bound over to the Grand Jury today. Judge Healy made findings of probable cause in three larceny charges against him. He dismissed one complaint. The case was returned to Monday for formal entry that Cataldo might secure bail.

He was arrested April 15 after a long search. Scores of investors, mostly foreigners, claim losses totaling $40,000 through investments in the trust.

Witnessing for the Commonwealth testified Cataldo promised 10 per cent. dividends, claimed the trust owned many banks, was backed by the Federal government and that he had $50,000 on deposit. The defense opened today and presented only two witnesses before resting.

STRIKERS TELL GRIEVANCES TO HARDING

Chicago, July 13 (By International News Service).—Grievances of the striking railway shopmen against the railroads and the United States Railroad Labor Board were laid before President Harding today in a telegram sent to the nation's chief Executive by the executive council of the shopcrafts union.

Charges of partiality are clearly implied against the Labor Board, and violations of law are specifically charged against the carriers. The willingness of the striking unions to bring about a just settlement is asserted.

Interruptions of commerce and the mails, the telegram continues, will continue and increase until an adjustment is reached. The telegram is the union's response to the proclamation issued by President Harding that the mails must not be interfered with.

The telegram charges that the Railroad Labor Board has fixed wage scales far below the standard of a living wage and contends that the employes are clearly within their rights in striking. It points out that Federal Judge Page has held that decisions of the Labor Boards on wage and rules are merely advisory.

TEXT OF TELEGRAM.

The text of the telegram follows:

"It appears from your proclamation of July 11 that incomplete information has been furnished you concerning the present dispute between the railroad operators and the employes.

"Ninety-two railroads have violated the transportation act, or decisions of the Railroad Labor Board, in two cases. These involve not only contracting out work and shops, but also wage decisions, interpretations of rules and rights of employes to select their own representatives.

"When the Pennsylvania Railroad refused to comply with the board's ruling Federal Judge Page held that the board's decisions on wages and rules are only advisory. Railroads have refused ever since the passage of the transportation act to establish national board of adjustment as described by the Labor Board as 'an essential part of the machinery to decide disputes between the carriers and employes.'

"The railroads have made all negotiations merely formal, thus throwing upon the board an impossible burden of arbitration.

"The board has abolished overtime pay for Sundays and holidays, employed for thirty years even on unorganized roads. The board has established a basic wage of $600 per year, although the Department of Labor statistics fixed a bare subsistence cost of living at over $1,400 and a minimum comfort budget at over $2,500.

WAGE SCALE UNJUST.

"When the basic wage is unjust it follows that all wages graded upward for skill and responsibility are likewise unjust.

"Organized employes support your declaration of May 22, 1921, that lowest wage must be enough for comfort and insure that the struggle for existence shall not crowd out things truly worth living for, and to provide education, recreation and saving. Employes have never violated any decisions of the board, but railroads have violated the decisions and employes have refused to work under wages fixed by the Labor Board in violation of the provisions of the transportation act.

Hooper Still Hopes to Arrange Settlement

Chicago, July 13 (By the Associated Press).—Although moves for peace in the rail strike apparently were slowed up somewhat today, the general trend still seemed to be toward negotiations for a settlement despite the flat refusal of railroad executives to enter a peace parley with B. M. Jewell, head of the striking shop crafts.

One of the most optimistic notes was sounded by Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States Railroad Board, who fostered the rejected conference. Mr. Hooper announced that he had formulated new plans for ending the walkout.

CLERKS NOT TO STRIKE.

California, Texas and Michigan were among the scenes of fresh disorders, while Crewe, Va., quieted down after the killing of a yard office clerk. Bloomington, Ill., still remained one of the tense spots of the country.

The New York Central apparently has prevented a strike of clerks on its lines.

Numerous strikebreakers and guards were injured, one perhaps fatally, at Oroville, Cal., when about seventy-five men, speeding into town early today in automobiles, charged the Western Pacific roundhouse here. Four guards were missing and are believed to have been kidnaped.

At Denison, Texas, E. L. Cox, an electrician, was taken from a Missouri, Kansas & Texas train by a band of men and killed. Sudly.

TOLD TO LEAVE STATE.

Also at Denison two imported workmen were seized today by a band of men and taken four miles to the Red River, where they were lectured and told to leave Texas.

Saginaw, Mich., was the scene of disturbances on the Pere Marquette and Governor Groesbeck was asked for troops.

MRS. GEORGE J. GOULD

MRS. HOTCHKISS NOT BESIEGED BY ADMIRERS

Bridgeport, Ct., July 13.—Edward H. Hotchkiss, wealthy retired manufacturer, whose young bride committed suicide by drowning while bathing at Fairfield Beach, according to Dr. James A. Christian, deserted his love nest at the Stratfield Hotel here today and departed without leaving an address. It is believed his destination was some point in the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

Before quitting town Mr. Hotchkiss gave instructions that his love nest be undisturbed during his absence. A report that an attempt had been made to force the lock of the door leading to the Hotchkiss suite was denied by Manager Cantwell.

Little is known of Mrs. Hotchkiss' earlier life by Bridgeport friends. She was an attractive women with harsh voice, these friends say. She weighed only ninety pounds.

Hotchkiss' friends think it strange that, any other man should have been interested enough to make an appointment with her at Fairfield Beach. Relatives still discredit the story that she met a man by appointment shortly before death and repeat that they do not know the man named James Ormond who may have been friendly with her.

Charles Collins, proprietor of the bathing pavilion where Mrs. Hotchkiss is said to have talked with a man shortly before death, today denied that two notes were found in the small bath-house rented to the bride. He said the only message left by Mrs. Hotchkiss to his knowledge was one found in her pocketbook directing that her watch be given to Mrs. Strickland of Erie, Pa.

The recruits passed creditable physical examination at the office of Dr. T. J. Lyons.

GOULD ADMITS MARRIAGE TO ACTRESS

New York, July 13.—In a brief message to the Paris correspondent of Universal Service from Aix Les Bains, George J. Gould confirmed his marriage to Mrs. Vera Sinclair.

"Am married to Vera Sinclair."

Beyond the brief announcement that the heir to the Gould millions and the beautiful Mrs. Sinclair were married, no further mention was made of the nuptials.

Mrs. Sinclair is an English woman who came here in the Winter of 1913, taking a feature part in "The Girl on the Film," a George Edwardes London Gaiety production which was put on at the 44th Street Theatre. Her name was then Miss Vera Sinclair. She acted as understudy for Miss Emmy Wehein, star.

George Grossmith, London comedian, an old friend of George Gould, introduced the two in 1914.

When the company returned to England, it was without Miss Sinclair. Miss Sinclair and Mr. Gould were now well known figures, appearing often on Fifth avenue together.

Miss Sinclair, as she was then known, was a woman of striking appearance.

For the last few years Miss Sinclair has occupied a town house, No. 322 West Seventy-fourth street. It is a handsome five-story stone residence, opposite the house of Charles M. Schwab, and only a door from Riverside Drive.

Mr. Gould was a frequent caller there.

Miss Sinclair, or Mrs. V. Sinclair, as she was known to tradespeople, also had a car, a Rolls-Royce with the initials "V. R." lettered on it.

Two children, one a boy and the other a girl, about six and seven years old, respectively, are seen frequently going and coming from the Sinclair residence, taking their walks on Riverside Drive, or on West End avenue with a French nurse. There is said to be one younger.

FIVE HELD IN BIG LIQUOR SEIZURE

Pleas of not guilty were entered by the four defendants who were arrested with Michael J. (Subsey) Sullivan of Salem, boxing promoter, on the charge of conspiracy in connection with bringing into this port 400 packages of high-grade whiskey from a foreign port. The defendants, who were held in $500 bail each by U. S. Commissioner Hayes for a hearing on July 17 are Captain George B. Rich of the power boat Lorena, Benjamin B. Johnson, Charles F. Dow and Elliot Adams. All furnished bail.

Sullivan was held in $3,000. The contraband liquors were seized at Plum Island, Newburyport.

NEW VICTORIES FOR IRISH FREE STATERS

London, July 13.—Continued victories for the national forces in the west of Ireland were reported in a Central News dispatch from Dublin. The insurgents have been entirely driven out of the town of Galway, with the loss of one killed and twelve taken prisoner, including one of their leaders. A large quantity of munitions and equipment also was captured. The national forces lost two killed and several wounded.

Before fleeing from Galway the irregulars set fire to the public market house, the postoffice and a number of adjoining business houses.

Sir James Craig, Ulster Premier, arrived in London today and with the Marquis of Londonderry, another Ulster Cabinet member, interviewed Winston Churchill, Colonial Secretary, regarding the Ulster Boundary Commission.

Discredit Report of Death of De Valera

Dublin, July 13 (By the Associated Press).—Michael Collins has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Irish National Army, it was officially announced today. Collins, Richard Mulcahy and General Owen O'Duffy will comprise a war council in supreme charge of military operations throughout the country. Mulcahy is also named chief of staff.

The Irish Parliament today was prorogued for fourteen days to enable members fighting in the Irish Free State army to continue with the colors.

Eamon De Valera has again dropped out of sight and it was rumored that he was dead, but this rumor is not credited by any of the Free State officials.

The manifesto warned the people in the following words:

"Were armed groups, who are taking upon themselves the responsibility for making war against the Irish people, permitted to remain under arms to continue their unnatural activities this country (Ireland) would be faced with economic ruin and famine as well as the return to the British."

Regulars claim the situation in the South is satisfactory. However, the Irregulars claim to have a series of successes north of Cork which gives them control of part of the counties of Kerry, Wexford, Cork and Mayo.

A dispatch from Belfast quoted, P. J. Little, the Belfast "press agent" of the Republicans, as saying that the people of Cork have accepted the Republic which was proclaimed there by rebels on Tuesday.

Limerick was the seat of the rumor of De Valera's death according to the report, a mysterious coffin, draped with the Irish Republican colors, and under guard of regular troops, was lying in state in a church.

TO MODERNIZE OLD TIME TREATY

Washington, July 13.—Early consummation of a treaty restating in more modern terms and giving permanent form to the essential principles of the century-old Rush-Bagot agreement for restriction of armament on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River was looked for today, following the conference at the State Department between Premier King of Canada and Secretary Hughes.

the heart, liver, intestines and blood vessels.

This is not surprising. The sun, once foolishly supposed to be a great mass burning up, is nothing of the sort, but a gigantic source of electric power and radio activity. It is bombarding the earth and all of us constantly with its powerful rays. Sun spots that interfere with those rays or increase their power must affect all of us in some way, of course.

Our good friends in the north of Ireland celebrated yesterday the battle of Boyne Water.

Those loyal Protestants in the North of Ireland rejoice in the day when Ireland was beaten and the English army won.

Irish Catholics of the south take sufficient comfort in the fact that the English army won were led by a Dutchman, and the Irish were beaten because they were led by an English King, first to quit the fight, and at full speed.

The Hague parley seems going to pieces. The Russians say, "Money first, promises afterward." They and the lady says of her cook, "very independent." We treat Russia as one of seven Protestants in England treated quinine. They wouldn't use it, because it was discovered by Catholics, and therefore couldn't be holy.

Our government won't deal with Russia because Bolshevism is not sufficiently holy. England is not so particular. As Norman Hapgood says: "The difference between Lloyd George's record on Russia and that of our State Department is exactly the difference between adroitness and woodenness."

POOR AND IGNORANT PREY OF GREENE, IT IS CHARGED

FINANCIER IS ALREADY BARRED IN 2 STATES

pungent information that the world was his oyster. So he tossed aside the much-stained apron and jacket, said good-by to the glassware and the ice-packed tubs of cream and stepped into State street to rub elbows with bankers.

That was Henry, a "Passionate Pilgrim" in the world of finance Samuel Merwin might have called him as he did his hero, Henry Calverly, the third. Just plain Henry Greene, a soda jerker in State street.

Today Henry on the terraced lawns of his North Shore estate looked off on the world in the same thoughtful manner as he surveyed the boys and girls he dished up beverages to a few years back and saw what Nero saw in Rome years back—the multitude clamoring for blood.

DAZED FINANCIERS.

What Henry did in the world of finance made bankers in the well known 11th grow dizzy at this sapling's nerve and turn of mind.

While the shrewd, thin-lipped banker harrumphed and hawed about a mere million-dollar deal, Henry Vincent Greene fooled a patient corporation of various offsprings and with glowing literature invited the rank and file along the highway of life to pour into his lap the shekels they owned. They poured too, thousands of them; poured just as Henry poured the sizzling sodas in his white-vested days.

LEGAL AID SUING.

So today shrieking in newspaper headlines is the name of Henry Vincent Greene and the record of his dizzy days in State street. Maybe they'll go on, too. They've only sued and $14,000,000 to Henry Greene is only $14,000,000. It might mean ruin to some folks, but it's just $14,000,000 to Henry.

In the language of law, H. V. Greene Co., the Commercial Finance Corporation, the Mutual Finance Corporation and the First People's Trust are sued for $14,000,000, paid in for the purchase of stock. Suit was filed by the Boston Legal Aid Society through its general counsel, Joseph W. Taylor and special counsel, Joseph A. Locke, acting for thirty-five plaintiffs, other stockholders or holders of investment plan contracts to purchase stock in the defendant companies.

HIS CO-WORKERS NOTED.

Twenty-six Henry as defendants in the suits are the directors and trustees of the Green Companies, both officers and individuals, many of them men prominent not only in Boston, but throughout the State. Important too is procedure taken to prevent any disposition of monies being made pending the outcome of the suits.

Appointment of temporary receivers for the defendant companies is asked and the plaintiffs request that they and all others who may be similarly situated (they number 60,000, it is alleged) "be decreed entitled to rescind all transactions as to the purchase of stocks or shares of each and every one of said defendant organizations and, upon tendering said stock and shares or contracts therefor and any dividends received thereon back to the defendants to be given judgment and execution for the full amount of money paid therefor to said defendants or any of them with interest thereon and that execution therefor may issue."

The bill brought by the Legal Aid Society includes several defendants who are members only of a voting trust.

On behalf of those defendants it has been agreed by the Legal Aid Society and William Harold Hitchcock, one of the defendants, that the injunction issued by Judge Jenney shall be modified so that the First People's Trust, so called, may arrange for the payment of checks and drafts heretofore issued and that they may pay wages of employes and other debts contracted for the ordinary business of the trust.

They may receive all moneys due the trust and take all ordinary proceedings to enforce payments due other than payments from subscribers of shares; and may make payments to customers of the trust on account of contracts heretofore made, and now in force, and on account of loans or other similar advancements for which applications have been heretofore accepted by the trustees.

$15,000,000 ATTACHMENT.

An attachment motion of $15,000,000 is brought in a separate action.

Henry and his workers in the financial vineyard are charged with entering into a "gigantic scheme and conspiracy whereby they planned to obtain from large numbers of poor and ignorant persons grossly exorbitant promotion fees, profits and commissions," playing upon the imagination of the prospective investors with the so-called idea of "financial democracy."

What a grand old word—democracy.

Fried to death by politicians, hanged and twisted by stump-speakers in the pan of dazzling oratory, Henry brings it into finance:

"Don't be a sucker," was Henry's plea to the hard-working man, satisfied to bank his money in savings institutions for 4½ per cent. per annum "Don't be a sucker."

LANDED 60,000.

For as the papers of the suit word it: "The cardinal principle of the conspiracy was to represent to the prospective investor that the investment was not paying a fair return to the man of small means, whereas the companies in question were so organized that the investor would receive the full earning power of his money, and that small investors by combining in the purchase of large securities and thus financing a large company would obtain profits from the large moneymaking enterprises and hitherto open only to the rich and to the great bankers."

The 60,000 persons, it is charged, it was the end of the quest for the Golden Fleece, $14,000,000 having been handed to Henry and his pals; $5,000,000, it is charged, was retained by the defendant conspirators, illegal, fraudulent and secret profits."

SHERMAN WHIPPLE INVOLVED.

Named with the thirty-four-year-old wizard are J. Henry Neal, William R. Sampson, William F. Kenney, Edmund C. Campbell, Austin M. Pinkham, Henry B. Robinson, Walter G. Burns, William L. Ternhune, Jerome Schouer, Ivan Skinner, W. Harold Hitchcock, Andrew A. Badaracco, E. C. Becker, Frederick A. Hinchcliffe, Abraham L. Howard, John E. Locatelli, William T. Sherman, Alfred L. West, William J. Townsend, Edward G. Leffler, Walter P. Spring, Alberto Gonfanie, Edwin L. Wayman, Adonis D. Howard, Samuel L. Powers, John H. Sherburne, Sherman L. Whipple, George A. Rich, Patrick F. Sullivan, Guy W. Currier and Ange Edwaldsen.

Back in 1917 it is alleged that Henry Greene started to mulct the public. How fast he worked can be readily seen from the manner in which his companies multiplied, almost as fast as the famous guinea pigs.

To review his operations is to invite astigmatism probing into dilectorates and aims and functions of his many enterprises.

Enough to know that in five short years 60,000 persons became intimately acquainted with Henry Vincent Greene, and $14,000,000 rolled into the coffers of the companies born in his fertile brain.

Today by the side of his comely young wife he can sit and contemplate his prize herds, his rolling acres, his imported cars and liveried help.

BARRED IN TWO STATES.

Maybe the clink of ice in the shaker or the size of soda on the lump of iced cream might be a comfortable feeling at the minute to Henry V. Greene, inasmuch as for years Henry has been seating on "ither" ice.

Up in Maine and New Hampshire, where live what city folks like to call rural bodies, they are wary of him and his schemes the gate years ago.

"We don't want you," they said. Nothing was said about Henry's affairs not being strictly honest, but it was just "We don't want you."

But Henry's highly-trained voluble salesmen never got permits to sell stock in the get-rich-quick ventures.

Then two years ago Attorney-General J. Weston Allen busied himself into the intricate workings of the Greene companies, and for months there buzzed through the financial district conjectures as to how long the boy wizard's marvelous operations would continue.

The attorney-general's investigation followed the collapse of the Massachusetts Motors, Incorporated, a Greene subsidiary. Half a million dollars was the loss figured, and the former soda jerker promised to personally makes every nickel of it good.

From time to time there popped up in court suit after suit from investors who charged they had been defrauded in the purchase of stock and alleged failure to get proper returns of their investment refunded, as promised. There was the rub in stock sold to the gullible.

There was a "joker" in every contract made for sale of stock as shown in today's Boston American in a photostat of a contract.

The purchaser always bound himself to printed conditions on the back of each contract the last line of which always read: "No agreement is made to repurchase the shares herein sold or to resell the same or to refund any money paid hereunder. No authority is given any one to make alterations in this agreement."

Yet, every salesman who sold stock in the former soda jerker's many companies informed the person solicited in no uncertain manner that "Money will always be refunded. If you're not satisfied you get your money back."

get your money back," so clients of Greene declare.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL EDUCATION

Henry and his operations were made practically asbestos covered as far as the fire of the law went by shrewd lawyers earning gigantic salaries.

Born in Lawrence on April 5, 1888, the son of Robert F. and Elizabeth Santry Greene, the boy got only a grammar school education and then hopped to Boston. His first job was at the fountain of a Roxbury drug store. He left that after a few years of soda jerking to sell therapeutic remedies for Armour and Company.

In 1913, just 25 years old, he lunged into the public eye when he established the Old Colony Foundry and Fence Company, only to drop it during the war and form the Commercial Finance Corporation with a capitalization of several million dollars, formed for the purpose of "bringing the better kind of financial opportunities within the range of the small investor," the company dealing with the financial side of the automobile industry.

It was 1918 when the company was launched and going and Henry, the soda suds hardly dry from his hands, began to deal in millions with the reckless abandon with which he had once crunched eggs for a coffee nog.

So successful was the Commercial Finance Corporation in interesting the common people that in the first nine months of its existence it loaned $1,500,000. So, on Oct. 28, 1919, willing to let Bostonians see as much Greens as they could, Henry Greene Brands Charges "Ridiculous"

MR. AND MRS. H. V. GREENE.

Henry B. Robinson, president Robinson Export Company.

Jerome Schouer, president Jerome Schouer & Company, Insurance.

Henry V. Greene was then vice-president Commercial Finance Corporation; vice-president Mutual Finance Corporation and director Hanover Trust Company.

What has happened to the Hanover Trust Company is now history. When closed by Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen it was declared one of the richest of the trust companies barred from doing business.

In July, 1921, less than two years later, Henry, having taken all his financial playthings under one parent organization known as the H. V. Greene Company, Inc., found himself in hot water when the Boston Legal Aid Society through Attorney Taylor filed suit on behalf of 1,152 investors, mostly foreigners, charging conspiracy, gross mismanagement and false and fraudulent misrepresentation.

In all, thirty court actions were directed against the company, six suits having been pending.

It was revealed then that Greene's first failure, the collapse of the Old Colony Foundry & Fence Company, had been followed by an attempt to become a world financier as head of "The Allied National Bank," but that authorities at Washington had nipped the bud before it bloomed.

UNDISMAYED BY PROBES.

It took more than national bank officials to throttle his dreams and shortly he was launched and dining with Boston's blue stockings, his motor purring before some of the most fashionable of the homes of Back Bay's elite.

Financial investigations, suits and every other entanglement caused no ripples on the calm of the boy wizard's life. His many companies somehow always managed to show a slender margin on the right side of the ledger and the ex-soda clerk went along serene.

How well Henry sold his goods can be gleaned from this little pamphlet entitled "The Ethical Side of Our Business." Read:

"Within the past year the H. V. Greene Company has attracted to its employ hundreds of successful business and professional men. Among its 1,300 salesmen and sales managers are many former executives, physicians, surgeons, attorneys, school principals, ministers of the gospel, a great many who left positions and vocations of many years' standing, which were paying them upwards of $12,000 annually. This would carry the presumption that a great many of these men were attracted more by the ethical side of our business than by anything else.

"As one minister recently expressed himself: 'The most satisfying aspect of my connection with this company has been, not my increased income, but the opportunity this company has offered me of rendering what I earnestly believe to be a genuine and important service to my clients and to my country as well as to my family and to myself.'

"In other words, his connection with the organization had enabled him to follow the same ideals and practice, the same identical principles that had characterized his ministerial career."

The pamphlet concludes with this salient paragraph:

"This is the ethical side of H. V. Greene Company—service to its clients in securing for them the full earning power of their dollars.—service to our country by putting John Smith's dollar to work along side of John D. Rockefeller's millions for our common prosperity; eat standards of truth, honor and efficiency."

Sixty thousand read and believed and now will battle to get back $14,000,000 they handed over to a kid soda jerker.

Not only did they believe that, but, other reading matter in which the public was not only invited to subscribe to stock in the Greene Companies, but warned to put some of their money in a savings bank ready for instant withdrawal "in case of necessity."

Shareholders had no control whatever in any of the companies they were sold on.

$30,000,000 Money King Once $12 Soda Clerk

From $12 per week to head of a $30,000,000 corporation was but the leap of a decade for Henry Vincent Greene. When most boys are just getting started after a college career Greene—born a poor boy in Lawrence—at twenty-five years of age was doing big things in the world of business. At thirty-one he was the head of The First People's Trust Company, a $30,000,000 organization, and rubbing elbows with Boston's finest. From soda-jerking to a millionaire and owner of a twenty-eight-acre exclusive estate in Weston and a Summer home in North Scituate, Henry Vincent Greene was "sitting pretty," a millionaire, when most men are just getting a foothold. He is the father of two children, Robert, one year, and Henry, two years old.

GREENE AGREEMENT AND ALLEGED 'JOKER'

Above is seen a reproduction of the face of the agreement of one of his subsidiary companies. Rather inconspicuously, it calls attention to "Conditions on the reverse side." Therein is what his accusers term the "joker" that repudiated the alleged promise of his salesmen that investors could get their money back. Below is a reproduction of the "conditions." Their last paragraph states: "No agreement is made to repurchase the shares herein sold or to resell the same or to refund any money paid hereunder. No authority is given to any one to make alterations in this agreement." The various agreements were printed in different colors.

Statements Made by Men Mentioned in Greene Suit

The following statements were made by men whose names are mentioned in connection with the H. V. Greene suit:

Sherman L. Whipple: "My only participation in the matter has been as a voting trustee with Herbert Parker and Samuel L. Powers to provide a board of directors for two of the corporations, who would collect in the assets and distribute them to the stockholders."

Henry B. Robinson: "I have not been connected with the company for two years."

Samuel L. Powers: "I have nothing to say now. I expect to have considerable to say later."

Edward G. Leffler: "I have no statement to make."

Andrew A. Badaracco: "I don't know anything about it. I was connected with the company, but got out some time ago."

Second Arrest Made in Alleged Oil Swindle

The second arrest in the round-up of promoters of an alleged fraudulent New England oil stocks deal came when M. Albert Jacobs, twenty-six years old, of No. 259 Parkvale avenue, Everett, was taken into custody by Inspectors Haggerty and Farrell of police headquarters.

Samuel Lewis of New York was arrested Tuesday in the same connection.

Jacobs is charged with robbing Dr. Edward W. Gehring of Portland of $20,000 in stocks and cash, through an alleged fake brokerage office, known as Herald & Co., with offices at Doans street.

With Lewis and others, it is said that Jacobs conducted a stock-brokerage business there, and interested Dr. Gehring in an oil company, which was alleged to be under formation in New England. Dr. Gehring, it is alleged, gave him $5,000 in cash and $15,000 in stocks to invest in this company for him.

A few days later, according to the police, Jacobs and his partners closed up their office and disappeared. An alarm was sent out by Dr. Gehring, and the two arrests resulted.

itude, nor to hurt anybody. He gave me no choice. He injected himself and his wrath and must take the consequence.

TO TELL WHOLE COURTSHIP.

"Flo Ziegfeld brought this on himself. It is a nightmare of his own creation. He has drawn his own fire. He has literally shoved Jack and me into a corner and I am forced in justice to Jack and myself and the public to break silence at last. I do it ever so grudgingly. It has come to be a matter of fair play.

"Actuated by these feelings and no other, I shall give my side of this matter to the public and while I am doing it I don't mind telling for the first time in detail, how I met Jack Pickford, how he fell in love with me at first sight as I did with him, how he courted me, how he bashfully fumbled with the engagement ring and showed it to almost everybody else before he told me he had it, and how Mother Pickford is arranging every minute detail for a simple white wedding.

"Mrs. Pickford told Jack and me she was tired of people eloping and that our wedding day at Beverly Hills, Los Angeles, on August 1, will be an event to be remembered in all our lives, though it is to be ever so simple—a real family affair. We are all agreed on that.

"I have held my patience and temper for weeks and months, turning a deaf ear to sinister inuendo and gossip. I have been misjudged and misquoted. I have been credited with mushy-garbled interviews which I never granted. At last the time has come to expose Flo Ziegfeld's wicked, personal motives.

WHY ZIEGFELD HATES

"I shall tell why he hates Jack Pickford, who accidently, absolutely without choice, or plan or intent, became a sort of nemesis of Flo Ziegfeld, by first falling in love and marrying Olive Thomas and taking her away from Ziegfeld while she was under contract, and how fate threw Jack in my path, and how (through the agency of my dead husband, Frank Carter, and of plans for her wedding, which will take place in Los Angeles, on August 1.

Marilyn Miller Defends Jack and Flays Ziegfeld

By BERT FORD.

Marilyn Miller, star of "Sally," has given the Boston American a series of exclusive interviews in which she discusses her business relations with Florenz Ziegfeld, her first meeting with Jack Pickford, his courtship and proposal, Ziegfeld's attack on Jack Pickford and her late husband, Frank Carter, and of plans for her wedding, which will take place in Los Angeles, on August 1.

I have been credited with saying that I would never marry a man who was not a success. I never said it. I never thought it. I never dreamed it. I have been credited with saying that I would never marry a man who was not a success. I never said it. I never thought it. I never dreamed it.

"Flo Ziegfeld holds a contract signed by me. But that contract relates solely to business. He has not the slightest control over my private or social affairs. Who is he that he should try to dictate to me or to tell me whom I should or should not marry?

JACK'S NAVY RECORD.

"On what authority has he set himself up as a paragon of virtue? His position is ludicrous. If it were not so serious to Jack and to me, I could laugh it away, but unfortunately, the public is ignorant of the facts and circumstances and, therefore, could not understand or derive a fair perspective unless they heard from me or Jack.

"Flo Ziegfeld's interview given in Paris last week is a contemptible attack on Jack—a lie. Jack Pickford was not dishonorably discharged from the navy. His mother showed me his honorable discharge and an affidavit signed by the public advocate of the navy. Jack can join the navy again with honor if he cares to. I never discussed the matter with him very much.

"Jack isn't given to discussing himself on his affairs. I just gathered from fragments dropped that some others tried to use Jack as a tool, but Jack was clean and honorable as he has always been in everything.

"Do you know another thing that I resent, just fly into a frenzy about—almost every time I think of it? It's the notion that appears to have got abroad that Jack and I are involved in a cheap press agent love affair. That's not so. It's unfair to both of us to even suspect it.

REAL LOVE MATCH.

"Our marriage will be the result of a real love match. It is not a show marriage, or a press agent's dream or a snare for oodles of publicity, or anything of the sort, and all our friends know it, and so does Flo Ziegfeld and that's what makes him all the more furious.

"His big aim in life appears to be to discredit Jack Pickford. But if he rants until doomsday he couldn't do anything but increase my admiration and infatuation for Jack. The more Flo Ziegfeld hurts Jack Pickford the more he hurts me and the more I despise him for it. He's a wretch to say what he did in Paris about Jack and my coming marriage.

"But it was old stuff. He told me the same things a year ago. He repeated them before he sailed for Europe. He has told them to others. He has written about Jack to me, the most violent accusations. My sister Claire read the letters and so did my maid, Violet Ortley, who has been with me since I was fifteen and I'm twenty-two now.

"They can corroborate everything I say. I was obliged to hold Flo Ziegfeld at arms' length. He resented such treatment. It was new for a man of his many conquests. But he was too callous to take the hint. He was annoyingly patient, persistent. I never saw his like.

"I had heard his boasts about women. I had known of his affairs with Anna Held and many others. He broke Anna Held's heart. She told me so before she died. She was on her deathbed at the time.

"But I am straying. I worship Jack Pickford. He's a dear, sweet, wonderful boy, more wonderful than his host of film admirers realize. I have discovered so many fine traits in him. He is shy and generous. I think his bovish bashfulness was one of the first things that attracted me.

"But my dead husband was instrumental in developing my interest in Jack Pickford, long before I met the dear boy. It happened like this:"

DETAIN WOMAN NEAR THE FENWAY BRIDGE

Attracted by the suspicious movements of a woman walking near the bridge at the Fenway off Charlesgate East, Patrolman Golan of Station 16 took her into custody. She had a box of pills in her hand and several times had paused by the bridge as if to jump in.

She gave the name of Ethel Croyle of No. 71 Western avenue, but failed to give a satisfactory explanation of her conduct. The woman, who is soon to become a mother, was sent to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation.

TEACHERS PAY UP 99 P. C. IN TEN YEARS

Horace Man would smile a happy smile if he were alive today. Education is picking up in this State.

Some facts and figures, to prove it, are given out today by the State Department of Education, including these:

There is a larger enrollment in the normal schools than ever. The pay o teachers has increased 99 per cent in the last ten years and hundreds who quit during the war are going back to the profession.

More Massachusetts children will be taught by Massachusetts teachers this year than ever before.

A year ago the schools were so overcrowded that 40,000 children had to take part time education. This year thirty-eight new school buildings, with accommodations for over 12,000 students, are being built at a cost of over $7,000,000 and thirty-two others have been authorized, to take care of, 13,000 children, at a cost of $10,000,000. Still more are to be authorized.

More than 600 teachers have enrolled for the first Summer course at Hyannis Normal School and about 400 more are expected for the second Summer course.

School superintendents of forty cities and towns were today in conference at Hyannis. The North Adams State Normal School has opened a five-week Summer course with 240 teachers present.

ROOSEVELT CAN'T COME TO BOSTON

Theodore Roosevelt would like to come to Boston, but he can't. The Assistant Secretary of the Navy today turned down Governor Cox's invitation to fly from Newport to Boston to inspect the site of the new aviation landing field. Roosevelt, who is flying from Washington to Newport, replied that he regrets that he must be back in New York by Saturday for an important engagement.

Doomed Wife Killer Prefers Shooting to Gallows

Salt Lake City, July 13.—Sentenced to death for slaying his wife, Omer R. Woods, former prosecuting attorney at Idaho City was asked today which he preferred, shooting or hanging.

"Shooting," was his single-word answer.

Woods blamed bandits for the killing when, January 9, last he barely escaped from his blazing apartment.

The State claimed Woods killed his wife to get $16,000 insurance money.

Judge Handson sentenced Woods to be shot September 1 next.

MANY CANDIDATES FILE PAPERS

Representatives Timothy J. Driscoll and Frank J. Burke of Roxbury today filed papers for the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat held by John J. Englert.

Burke and Driscoll were storm centres among the colored population in that district. Their election was investigated by the House, which decided they were properly seated.

Mr. Englert is a candidate for re-election. He will have the backing of Mayor Curley. The fourth candidate in the race is Michael H. Fallon.

Congressman Louis A. Frothingham of the fourteenth district will have an opponent in Joseph Lafontaine, papers for whom were filed today.

Michael F. Kane, second Suffolk; Edward F. Lyons, Jr., fourteenth Suffolk, Simon A. Veno, twenty-fourth Suffolk, and William J. Francis of Charlestown have filed papers for the House.

BAY STATE BARS MAINE TRUCKS IN AUTO WAR

Maine and Massachusetts today had a falling out.

The State of Maine, turning down the olive branch, has refused to allow Bay State drivers to operate their motor trucks in the Pine Tree State without the payment of auto registration fees.

Massachusetts offered to allow Maine cars to be operated in this State without cost if Maine would reciprocate.

Massachusetts retaliated today when Commissioner of Public Works John N. Cole announced that the free period of sixty days allowed to the residents of other States has been withdrawn so far as Maine trucks are concerned and that every Maine driver who comes into the State must pay for registering his truck, must undergo the driver's test, and must take out a license to drive in this State.

LLOYD GEORGE FAVORS GERMAN MORATORIUM

London, July 13 (By International News Service).—"I believe it is necessary to give Germany a respite in the payment of reparations to enable her to restore her finances," Premier Lloyd George announced in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Paris, July 13 (By the Associated Press).—France will insist upon a full investigation into the causes which precipitated the present crisis in Germany leading to the German government's request for a moratorium on cash payments for two and a half years, before any respite is granted by the reparations commission.

BROOKLINE TAX RATE GOES UP BY $3.80

The Brookline tax rate announced today is the highest in the history of the fashionable township. It is $21.70, representing an increase of $3.80 over last year's rate. This is also the largest increase in a single year residents have ever been called upon to pay.

The Board of Assessors announced that the income tax from the State to Brookline would total a little more than $380,000, which is $74,000 less than received a year ago.

Tax valuation of the town is given as $112,000,000, $97,000,000 of which represents real estate, an increase of $3,000,000 in land value.

Due to no cash on hand this year, amount voted to be raised for town expenses is $400,000 more than a year ago.

WARNS AGAINST OIL ABOUT PULMOTOR

Warning of danger of the explosion of pulmotors if they come in contact with oil of any kind was issued by Colonel Alfred F. Foote, commissioner of public safety. The warning was sent to heads of police and fire departments throughout the State who are using pulmotors extensively for the saving of lives, especially in the Summer season.

Word was received from Deputy Chief Semott of the Boston fire department by State Chemist Walter L. Wedger that the oxygen cylinder forming a part of the pulmotor apparatus, is usually under pressure varying from 500 to 2,000 pounds to the square inch. Contact of this with any kind of oil will cause an explosion.

NEWBERRY MAY HAVE TO FACE TRIAL AGAIN

Washington, July 13.—Senator Truman H. Newberry, Republican, of Michigan, faces the inevitable necessity of standing trial again before the tribunal of his colleagues for possession of his seat in the Senate, it was learned today.

A new anti-Newberry movement has been launched "under cover" following the defeat of two strong Newberry supporters in recent Republican primaries. Sponsors of the movement, it was learned, intend to force a second Newberry trial similar to the second Lorimer trial as soon as the new Congress convenes next March.

SEEK MORGAN'S EXTRADITION FROM N. H.

Providence, R. I., July 13.—Bernard Morgan, president of the Morgan Manufacturing Company of Keene, N. H., failed to appear in the Sixth District Court today to answer a charge of swindling Frank G. Perry, furniture dealer of Fitchburg, Mass., out of $15,000. Mr. Morgan was arrested at his home Tuesday and was released on $3,000 bail when he waived extradition proceedings and promised to be in the Providence court this morning. Providence will seek his extradition today.

A number of people were in the court all waiting to see who had been asked by the police to see if Morgan was not one of the trio of wire tappers who operated from a cottage in Newport last year and secured thousands of dollars from Woonsocket, Webster, Mass., Pawtucket, R. I., and New York people. They made their escape just as the Newport police were about to raid their cottage.

Morgan, now president of the Morgan Manufacturing Company of Keene, N. H., is said by Chief Tobin of the Newport Police Department to be a former coachman for John Jacob Astor.

HARDING PEACE PLAN FAILS TO WIN MINERS

By International News Service.

Washington, July 13.—The miners will not accept President Harding's proposal of settlement of the coal strike, leaders forecasted today. According to union leaders, the anthracite operators accept the proposal as a purely arbitration plan and the miners, it was declared, will not consent to it on that basis.

The leaders declared that arbitration as interpreted by the anthracite operators means taking up issues already settled by past agreements and which the anthracite miners have refused to arbitrate in conferences held prior to government intervention.

The miners' spokesman reiterated today that the men will continue to "stand pat" in insisting they retain the check-off, collective bargaining union recognition and other "rights."

Furthermore, they again emphasized they will not accept reduction of wages under present conditions nor consent to district conference.

The President's proposition, as the anthracite operators interpret it in their letter of acceptance, is "blanket arbitration" and the workers, by binding themselves to abide by terms of settlement under such a plan, would risk losing everything they now have, the miners' leaders asserted.

POLICE HOUND STRIKERS AT AMOSKEAG

By CHARLES O. P'WER.

Manchester, N. H., July 13.—Amoskeag Mill strikers are enjoined by the Superior Court from saying anything that might annoy the finer feelings of strike breakers, and commanded by the police not to look askance at them. Yet the special police pirelings of the company who slouch along the approaches to the mill are permitted to glut their ugly whims by insulting people who have occasion to pass their way, according to reports that have come to the strike leaders.

This the way, it is explained by those who have suffered at their hands, they operate:

The pedestrian minding his own business is accosted and asked if he does not want a job with Amoskeag. When he replies that he does not, the wrath of the special policeman explodes upon his head and he is showered with profanity.

INTIMIDATION USED.

If the abused party shows signs of proper resentment, the special resorts to the usual trick of the slugger disguised in a little brief and fleeting authority when he is cornered. He shows his badge and he threatens arrest.

In that way he intimidates and the injured innocent hastens away. If the facts are as reported, these men wearing the special Amoskeag badge on the inside of their coats are imitating in some degree the methods of the professional crimps of the seaports of olden days, and have no fear of intervention by the regular officers of the law.

Everybody seems to realize that the crucial day of the strike will be next Monday. Overseers and second hands of Amoskeag are picking and choosing operatives whose services are most desired. They are calling at the homes and lying in wait on the streets for the men wanted. They are telling these preferred workers who are on strike that they will be taken care of. They are arguing that the backbone of the strike is broken and insisting that they have positive information that there will be a sudden collapse and that it will have to be abandoned soon because of lack of funds.

MAY RESORT TO EVICTIONS.

Mixed in with all this are implied threats that the company will be obliged soon to ask all those who occupy company houses to vacate them or return to work; that there will be something doing similar to the action taken by the Textile Club, controlled by Amoskeag, when the secretary cancelled the membership privileges of 1,700 members who are striking.

When Attorney Timothy F. O'Connor, who is counsel for the strikers, and who made a very telling address, combining eloquence and good advice, contrasted the services to New Hampshire of Senator George H. Moses and James Starr, leader of the strikers, there was a great outburst of cheering. Said Mr. O'Connor:

"Senator Moses says he will not talk about the strike with Jim Starr because Starr does not live in New Hampshire. I say to Senator Moses and to the people of New Hampshire that, on a certain Monday night and on a certain Tuesday morning, a few weeks ago, Jim Starr rendered greater service to the people of this State in upholding law and order than George Moses ever has rendered in all the years he has been in the service of the State."

AUTUMN GOWNS FOR WOMEN TO BE CHEAP

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

New York, July 13.—Prices on women's clothes are down fifty per cent, below those of last year.

They have fallen twenty-five per cent. under prices of last March.

This applies to spring and summer garments made of silks, tweeds, jersey cloth, cotton goods and some woolens.

The new autumn hats, suits, dresses and wraps now on display show a slight increase in price over the summer things, but all are marked approximately thirty-three and a third per cent. lower than were the new autumn things of last year.

According to buyers for department stores and specialty shops, the reasonable markings on the new things, always the most extravagantly raised of any throughout the entire sartorial year, indicates that this will be a winter of rejoicing for women who wish to dress well on small outlay.

SETTLEMENT IN BUILDING WAR IS NEAR

Settlement of the labor difficulties that have disturbed the local building trades for the past eighteen months will be made during the next day or so, according to advices from labor leaders.

The United Building Trades Council and the building Trades Employers' Association will shortly sign an agreement, probably in the office of Mayor Curley, in which wage and working hour scales will be adjusted satisfactorily. Conferences between representatives of the two groups, aided by the intervention of Mayor Curley, have brought about the settlement.

Wharf and bridge carpenters, it is said, will receive a pay increase to ninety cents per hour, while laborers will receive 50 cents.

ASSERTS STRIKE LOWERS VITALITY

Lawrence, July 13.—"The stress of the Lawrence strike will be felt in lowered vitality of hundreds for more than a year at least," declared Miss Myra H. Church, secretary of the Lawrence City Mission. The mission has been called upon to render charitable aid more than it has in years, its officials declare, as a result of the sixteen continuous weeks of the wage battle.

"No woman, no matter how well she manages," Miss Church said, "can provide adequate food for five children on $5 a week." This is the largest amount given applicants for aid.

3,810 STRAY DOGS PUT TO DEATH

The three constables authorized by the city of Boston to collect and dispose of unlicensed dogs in the city put 3,810 stray dogs to death during the past year, according to the report they have submitted to Mayor Curley. In 140 other cases, owners of the dogs called and saved the animals by taking out licenses.

Huntington Smith, director of the concern which the city has employed to handle the situation, wrote to Mayor Curley asking that the contract be renewed, and declaring that Boston is freer of stray and diseased dogs than any other city of its size in the world.

HORSE OWNER MUST SLEEP IN STALL

Bella was dumb, naturally, being a horse. In fact she was dumb Bella, if you please. So she could not make known to folks that her boudoir in a Wakefield barn was not what a lady with antiseptic ideas would want to lie down in. In fact, Bella's boudoir was downright unclean, to the point of vermin.

So bridled and tied, Bella was helpless.

But today she found a savior, Judge Thomas P. Riley of Malden court.

Before him appeared Bella's master, Raymond W. Putnam of Wakefield, charged with cruelty to Bella and neglect. The S. P. C. A., through A. E. Nowlan, prosecuted Putnam and painted a vivid picture of Bella and her boudoir.

"Bella, your honor," said Nowlan, "is a pure installment plan steed."

"A what?" said Hizoner.

"An installment plan steed," repeated the agent. "She was bought on the partial payment plan, $60 down and $25 due. If it wasn't for that I would order her sent to the happy hunting ground."

"As it is, she isn't paid for and is being kept in a filthy stall!" interrupted the court.

"Exactly," said Nowlan.

"Putnam," bellowed Judge Riley, "stand up." Putnam arose. "I sentence you," continued the judge, with levelled forefinger, "to sleep in Bella's stall for two nights. Maybe that'll teach you how to care for a horse. But," added the court, as the astounded master of Bella staggered backwards, "put Bella out to pasture while you do so. I want you to enjoy the fifth alone."

CLEAN OUT SHELLS AFTER FATAL BLAST

Watertown, N. Y., July 13.—Numerous artillery shells, similar to the "dud" which exploded here, killing eight children, were dumped in the Black River today by the police who hope to rid the city of them. Many of them had been picked up as souvenirs at Pine Plains, where they had been used in target practice by artillerymen.

FIGHT OVER USE OF TRADE NAME

Pawtucket, R. I., July 13.—"What Cheer" is not always synonymous with good cheer. Nicola Bertozzi of Pawtucket, who runs the What Cheer Creamery, is vexed with Domenico Scotti of Tobey street, Providence, who runs the What Cheer Ice Cream Company. Both have been selling "What Cheer" ice cream. Mr. Bertozzi is seeking an injunction to prevent Mr. Scotti from using the trade name of which Mr. Bertozzi claims a patent.

KEEPER OF LIQUOR CAVE FINED $200

Methuen, July 13.—Salvatore Licardillo, alleged owner of Methuen's "Old Kentucky Cave," as the police termed it, was fined $200 for illegally keeping liquor, in District Court by Judge Peirce. The police claim they found illicit brew and a still in an underground cave, roofed and walled with railroad ties, beneath an innocent looking garden in which thrived green vegetables.

SALISBURY MORALS LAX, SAYS JUDGE

Lawrence, July 13.—Judge Jeremiah J. Mahoney, in District Court here, charged that a serious laxity of morals existed at Salisbury Beach. His remarks were prompted in connection with the case of James Dowd, charged with a statutory offense. Judge Mahoney pointed out that some Lawrence people go there to take advantage of the alleged "wide-openness" which prevails.

AUCTION ON COMMON FOR FRESH AIR FUND

With Attorney-General Allen, City Councillor Francis J. W. Ford and Mary Young acting as auctioneers, the big drive of the Volunteers of America will start today at Parkman Bandstand, Boston Common. There will be dozens of others appearing on the program as well, and 200 girls with 200 former service men will sell cookies on the streets. The proceeds are to be used to give 2,000 mothers with children a week or two weeks' vacation at the Volunteers' camp at Bridgewater.

CAVALRY ESCORT AT VETERAN'S FUNERAL

Wakefield, July 13.—Sixteen men from Troop B, National Guard, under Lieutenant M. McCarthy, acted as military escort at the funeral of Cornelius Beeler, a World War veteran, who died in this town. Mr. Beeler was a member of Melrose Post, American Legion. Six sergeants of Troop B acted as pall bearers. They were Charles S. Morrison, Charles Edwards, Allen Brothers, Robert Wallman, Robert Philbrick and James Kempton.

BROWNING SAYS MODERN GUNS ARE PERFECT

By the Associated Press.

Hartford, Ct., July 13.—Ordnance of today is nearly perfect, in the opinion of Colonel John M. Browning of Utah, inventor of guns which bear his name. Mr. Browning is visiting here after a trip to Belgium.

He is also of the opinion that ordnance developed in the World War was not so marvelous as appeared when analysis is made. He said in an interview last night: "It is possible to go only just so far and certain limits are now being reached in the way of firearms and artillery. As a matter of fact, some of the artillery used in the Civil War would have been efficient in the last war, and a certain company in Connecticut sold to the French government during the World War, arms that had been manufactured for use in the Franco-Prussian War, with only minor changes."

CAPITAL WILL STOP SAVING DAYLIGHT

Washington, July 13.—President Harding has informed the Federal Employes' Union that the executive departments of the government have made their last experiment in voluntary daylight saving.

The union asked that government employes be allowed to vote on continuation through the Summer of the existing plan whereby the departments begin work an hour earlier and close an hour earlier, but the President has refused the request. He said:

"The executive branch of the government was committed to the plan and there will be no general order changing it until the latter part of August. Then it will be put aside for all time so far as this administration is concerned."

The voluntary plan was put into effect early in the Summer at the request of Washington business men and a number of government employes, but after a few days' trial both groups started an agitation to return to standard time.

Mrs. Stevenson Another Smartly Gowned Society Matron, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

WE wonder how many people would challenge Mrs. Thomas G. Stevenson's place on our list of the "six most smartly groomed matrons of Boston society?" The list includes also Mrs. Arthur L. Richmond and Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman, whom we have already described at length, with Mrs. Lothrop M. Weld, Mrs. Frank Wiggles-worth and Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., still to be "written up."

It is hard, indeed, to believe that Mrs. Stevenson, formerly Miss Frances LeMoyne, is the mother of two small children, for she is exceedingly youthful in appearance. With her tall, slim, figure she carries her clothes to perfection and is always noted for the loveliness of her costumes. She is a decided brunette with masses of black, curly hair and dark brown eyes, which seem almost black.

Mrs. Stevenson is spending the Summer at the Lee cottage in Beverly Farms, where she also spent the past Winter. With her are her two youngsters, Thomas G. Jr., and the little daughter, Marie. Their mother spends not a little of her time with them on the sands of West Beach, at the Farms, one of society's most popular beaches along the Shore.

Only recently I saw the former Miss LeMoyne—she is the daughter of Mrs. McPherson LeMoyne—drive up to West Beach in her little roadster. She looked very chic and trim in the white serge accordion plaited skirt and black silk sweater which she wore, the white beads which encircled her throat adding a most effective touch to the black and white costume.

Accompanying her was little Marie, the latter wearing a dainty frock of blue and white muslin which set off to great advantage her shock of auburn curls and pink cheeks. Mother and daughter had evidently made the trip to the beach to find young Thomas G., Jr., who looked very "rakish" in his old khaki clothes as he watched the sports on the sands.

I recall that last Spring Mrs. Stevenson was one of the most beautifully gowned women attending "Why Not," given by society folk for charity last March. She was very stunning looking in a cerise gown which set off most effectively her vivid brunette coloring.

MRS. THOMAS G. STEVENSON

Mrs. Thomas G. Stevenson (Frances LeMoyne) is considered by many as one of the six most smartly-groomed matrons in Boston society. Mrs. Stevenson, whose home is in Beverly Farms, is the daughter of Mrs. McPherson LeMoyne.

I HEAR that Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., is spending a portion of the hot months with her mother, Mrs. Carl A. de Gersdorff, of New York at the latter's Summer place in the Berkshires at Stockbridge.

The many Boston friends of Mrs. de Gersdorff all know of that matron's devotion to worthy charity causes and will not be surprised to learn that she opened her Stockbridge home yesterday and today for a sale in aid of the Stockbridge Vacation House of the New York Exchange for Women's Work.

Clothing, hats and fancy work were sold at the affair, at which Mrs. Bradlee, Jr., one of the prominent matrons of Boston's "younger married" set, was one of the society-saleshadies.

Speaking of Stockbridge, Miss Alison T. L. Haughton of Chariesgate East, sister of Percy Haughton of football fame, is visiting Miss Caroline T. Lawrence at the latter's Summer home there. With Miss Haughton is her little niece, who is named after her.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES CUMMINGS-BARR, who made their home in the Hub for a number of years and still keep up their many connections here, gave a dance the other night for 100 villagers on their country estate at New Ipswich, N. H.

The past Winter the Barrs, who pay frequent visits to Boston, have been making their home in New York at No. 11 East Sixty-eighth street. Visiting them just now at New Ipswich is Mrs. Barr's daughter, Mrs. Landon Humphreys of Convent, N. J., who will go to Southampton in August with her family.

Just before the Barrs closed their Winter residence in Gotham Mrs. Barr was taken suddenly ill, but she was improved considerably before they were enscounced at their New Ipswich home.

AFTER a visit with her mother, Mrs. Frederic Nelson, at Newport, Mrs. Hollis H. Hunnewell of Wellesley is bound for Nantucket. Mrs. Nelson is spending the Summer at the Muenchinger-King, and is I understand, taking a prominent part in the social life revolving about this famous watering place.

Since the death of her husband last Winter, Mrs. Hunnewell, formerly Isabella Nelson, has been spending quite a bit of her time with her mother.

After fifty-three years' service in the city's employ, Cashier Benjamin S. Turner of the city treasurer's office has asked for a strange reward—a demotion and reduction in pay. Feeling that he responsibility of the office were too much for his advancing years—Mr. Turner is eighty—he asked that he be given a position as clerk in the department, at a salary of $1,100. His position, which carries a salary of $4,000 a year, goes to Edwin A. Wall.

ASK AMERICAN AS KING OF ALBANIA

Tirana, Albania, July 13. (By the Associated Press).—Since Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, American great-nephew of Napoleon I., declined the Albanian throne last December, the Albanian government has been casting about for a suitable ruler. Offers have been made to Prince Cyrille of Bulgaria, King Ferdinand, and Duke of Abruzzin, cousin of King Victor Emanuel of Italy. A small minority of the Albanians favor the return of Prince William of Wied, who held the throne for a brief period in 1914, but most of the inhabitants of the country would like to see the crown given to a wealthy American or a titled Briton.

WIDOW WAS 'LITTLE HONEY' TO 'MEL' TROTTER, SHE DECLARES

EVANGELIST TRIED TO MAKE LOVE ON STREET CAR

In the courtroom at Grand Rapids, where "Mel" Trotter, internationally known evangelist, is defending his wife's suit for divorce, there sat Miss Florence Moodey. Trotter was charged by his wife with the fatherhood of a child born out of wedlock to Miss Moodey. Details of Trotter's amours have been related daily in the Boston American in its publication of George W. Walker's suppressed affidavit.. Another chapter of the affidavit is printed today.

The troubles of "Mel" Trotter increased when the divorce action of his wife started at Grand Rapids.

Intimate peeps into his alleged love affairs were disclosed in the testimony of Mrs. Frances Hoheke, a widow. She charged the evangelist with impropriteies toward her on four separate occasions.

Attempts at lovemaking in the automobile and on a crowded street car, purring "little honey" and other endearing names into her ear and inquiry into the most secret intimacies of her life are a few of the "devotional exercises" of which she accused the mission leader from the witness stand.

In today's instalment of the suppressed Walker affidavit Trotter's alleged amorous technique is described by Mr. Walker. The story of the tragedy in the Trotter home involving Florence Moodey, the girl missionary, is continued.

"AN AWFUL FOOL."

Q.—State the conversation between you and Mr. Trotter? A.—I said, "Mr. Trotter, you made an awful fool of yourself." He said, "Why, George?" I said, "In taking those girls up there to your house." "Why," he said, "it was fifty-fifty." I took two of her friends and two of my friends and a quart of ice cream.

Teenie Brummeler was there also. Mr. Trotter didn't take very much part in the conversation. He sat back.

Q.—Well, after he came was he present where he could hear the conversation? A.—Oh, yes. From then on he was present, and we went over it, over and over again. It seems to me we must have been two hours there.

Q.—Go on. A.—It was just going over and over again and talking about Jesus' love. I repeated to Mrs. Trotter how when they brought the accusation against Magdalene that Jesus never insulted her or looked her in the face, but turned around sideways and wrote in the sand: "Go, sin no more."

Now, I said, "Mother, if you think your husband, 'Mel,' has been in sin and you feel the least bit that he is wanting forgiveness, you ought to be just as free to forgive him as Jesus was that woman."

CALLED WIFE CRAZY.

Q—Was Mrs. Trotter's mental condition ever discussed by the doctors? A—Not very much. At one time after the annual session in 1917.

Mr. Trotter was there and mentioned her condition.

Q—What did he say? A—That he thought she was getting better.

Q—During the years from 1917 down to the present time, what has been the fact as to Mr. Trotter's statements with reference to his wife's mental condition from time to time? A—That she was off, erased.

Q—Has that been his continuous attitude since 1917? A—It has.

Q.—Did Mr. Trotter make any reference to it in his talk with Florence Moodey about this affair? A.—I did.

Q—Did you report to Mr. Trotter your talk with Miss Moodey? A.—Not all of it anyway. Something might have come up. But I told the board. I did talk to Mr. Trotter once. He said, "You had a talk with Miss Moodey?" I admitted it. He asked me what she said. And I told him that she said he was positively not the father of her child and that she would die before she would tell the father's name.

Q.—Was that what Miss Moodey told you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Anything else said to Trotter?

A.—I told him I was mighty sorry for Miss Moodey and that it nearly broke my heart when she told me her story.

Mr. Walker was then ordered to tell the details of Miss Moodey's story.

A.—Miss Moodey came to my home by appointment around the end of March, 1921. She was there the same day Mrs. Trotter told me her story. They nearly met on the steps. Miss Moodey was nervous and excited. I said, "Miss Moodey, if you don't want to tell your story you don't need to."

I didn't jump right at her. I told her only to tell such things as she wanted to; that it was my desire only to save her from further trouble.

She said: "I will tell it to you." She started from the time Mrs. Trotter came home from the park and they met in the mission and then went up to the Trotter home, where Mrs. Trotter offered to help her go out and buy clothes and Mrs. Trotter was to go away with her. I thing she said to Boston. But as the child was born prematurely the arrangements were upset.

MRS. TROTTER WAS KIND.

Miss Moodey said: "I suppose they sent in a call for Mrs. Trotter, when I was taken sick because she was very kind to me." I asked: "What do you mean by being kind?"

"Why" said the girl, "she went over to my house and cleaned it and did my washing, comforted my mother and came and stayed near me throughout the day without taking time to eat. She came every day until my trouble was over."

I asked: "What would you say about Mrs. Trotter?" The girl started crying: "No girl ever had a mother kinder than Mrs. Trotter was to me."

"Why was she so kind?" I asked.

"I don't know," answered the girl "unless it was for the work, for her faith."

SLAPPED HER FACE.

"Miss Moodedy," I said, "don't you think some one had positively told Mrs. Trotter that Mr. Trotter was the father of the child?"

"She said: "I think so."

I asked her if she did not believe that was the reason Mrs. Trotter had acted so kindly.

"I don't know," Florence said. "I never understood how she could be so kind to me."

I then asked her if Mrs. Trotter had once attacked her and pulled our great handfuls of her hair, as Mr. Trotter had said.

"No," she said, "that is untrue. She did shake me and tear my waist and slap my face, but she didn't pull out my hair. Maybe my hair was dangling on my shoulders from the shaking, but she didn't pull my hair."

Four Million Profit On Big Booze Business

Montreal, Que., July 13.—Profits on $15,000,000 worth of liquor sales——. How much do you think?

Four million dollars. Net, too, not gross.

The Quebec Liquor Commission reveals this today in public its annual report for the past year's business.

Much of it reaches the United States for illicit consumption.

There's money in booze.

BONIFACES DINE AND WINE LIKE KINGS OF OLD

Cleopatra rolled over in her perfumed grave, raised on one elbow and puffed at the dainty cigarette the reporter had handed her——

"You can say for me," said Cleo, "that the boys stole my stuff. I suppose it went good, a flock o' wine in a country you say is dry like my dear old Sahara of long ago. Hi mi, how things do change."

The Egyptian queen shot a smoke wreath curling around the reporter's battered skimmer. "If Ceasar could only have been there, or dear old Mark. How dry Mark was."

She snuffed out the stub and went back to sleep with dreams of the hotel men's banquet in her graying head.

DINE UNDER ROSE ARBOR.

They banqueted, the hotel men, convening in Boston this week, banqueted as did the crowned heads of old, feasting on whole roasted lambs, washed down with sparkling wine, at their elbows to pour, Egyptian beauties, veiled as in Cleopatra's day and just as rounded and virile.

The banquet, one of the greatest ever staged in Boston, was given in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza Hotel. Officially it was the annual dinner of the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit Association and the American Hotel Association.

Rose arbors harbored fat and prosperous hotel managers and proprietors who sat back and forgot that Mr. Volstead had decreed that "look not on the wine when it is—any color."

Imagine the rose-decked hall, with subdued lights filtering through verdant blooms while giant trenchermen, clad as chefs, bore aloft on ample platters whole young lambs, waffling savory steam in gentle clouds to be carved and served!

MUSIC, FOOD—AND WINE!

Music, food and wine, wine, food and music, and always at ye eater's elbow a veiled beauty purring as a fluffy kitten!

Speakers were Governor Channing H. Cox and others, but why get prosaic? Let's linger on the banquet dream, a page from the middle ages in these arid Volstead days!

ASK U. S. PROBE SHIP REFUSAL TO SAVE MAN

Gloucester, July 13.—The Municipal Council adopted a resolution calling for a congressional investigation into the charge that a steamship refused to heed a shipwrecked sailor.

Edward Hines, a Boston fisherman, told officials that a steamer refused to pick him up, although he was lying in the bottom of a dory, exhausted and nearly starved, more than a hundred miles from shore.

Alderman Silva introduced the resolution. Although the fisherman is not a resident of Gloucester, action was taken because of the fact that such an incident might happen to the sea-faring men of this city.

The resolution reads in part:

"It is therefore resolved that the facts in the case be communicated to the Senators and Congressmen from Massachusetts with the request that the proper authorities at Washington take such steps, if possible, as will establish the identity of the vessel, and that if it be of American registry, proper disciplinary measures be taken to prevent a repetition."

YOUTH ON TRIAL FOR CHILD'S MURDER

New York, July 13.—Fifteen-year-old Franci Kluzen is now on trial in New Jersey for the brutal murder of eleven-year-old Janette Lawrence at Madison. The child disappeared from her home, and after a general alarm had been sent out, her body was found brutally hacked and mutilated with a knife thrusts, in a lonely section of the wooded country near Madison, N. J., where the trial of the boy is being held.

GIRL SHOOTS MAN, KILLS SELF BEFORE BRIDE

Toledo, O., July 13.—The second woman lies dead and the man who scorned her lies dying, nursed by his bride of a day.

Such is the tragic outcome of the romance, culminating in the wedding of Pearl Thomas, most beautiful manicure girl in Toledo, admired by thousands of men for her charming ways and respected by as many Toledo women because of her staunch advocacy of women's rights and her fight for a liberal political platform.

Miss Thomas became engaged a few days ago, after a whirlwind courtship, to Kenneth Gumm, handsome, dashing young automobile salesman, known all over town.

They made a runaway match of it and were married Tuesday at Monroe, Mich., on Lake Erie, twenty-five miles from here.

When they returned to the pretty apartment Gumm had rented and furnished, news of the marriage had reached the ears of Evelyn Coucher, former sweetheart of Gumm. She was waiting for them at the doorway of their new home.

ADD HUNDREDS OF MILES TO YOUR RADIO

Here are the complete constructional details for the new Armstrong superregenerative receiver, together with the simplified Armstrong developed by Dr. G. W. Pickard of the Wireless Specialties Company.

These circuits are said by experts to have as wide a range as is possible with the present amount of interference at the 360-meter wave length. With them you will be able to pick up broadcasting stations that you never knew existed before.

L-1 and L-2 are the primary and secondary of an ordinary variocoupler or loose coupler.

L-3 is a honeycomb or duo-lateral coil with 1,000 or 1,250 turns.

L-4 is a honeycomb coil of 100 turns.

L-5 is a honeycomb coil of 1,500 turns.

C-1 is a variable condenser of .001 MFD capacity.

C-2 is an ordinary phone fixed condenser.

C-3 is either a variable or fixed condenser of about .0025 MFD capacity.

C-4 is a variable condenser of .001 MFD capacity.

D is a two or three-volt dry battery, made up of several flashlight cells.

B is a 60 to 100-volt B. battery.

A is the usual six-volt storage battery.

The LOOP is a wooden frame three feet square on which is wound twelve turns of No. 18 cotton-covered wire, each turn spaced an eighth of an inch from the next turn.

T-1 and T-2 are amplifier tubes.

HOW TO TUNE IT

Light tubes to proper brilliancy. Place C-4 at a half-open position. Then manipulate the coupling between L-1 and L-1 and vary C-1. If signals are not heard, adjust C-4 again and try once more. If signals are heard, adjust C-4 to the best position and then leave it there permanently. After C-4 has been adjusted once, tune by varying the coupling between L-1 and L-2 and condenser C-1.

Loud speaker is any one of the numerous loud speakers now on the market.

R-1 and R-2 are 12,000 ohm resistance units. These may be purchased constructed of Lavite in this size at small cost. They may be made just as grid leaks are made with a soft lead pencil on a small piece of cardboard. Fill in two circles about an inch and a half apart and half an inch in diameter, and thrust a binding post in the centre of each. Then fill in a heavy line between the two posts about a half-inch wide. This pencil line forms the resistance, and the two circles make the contact to the binding posts.

TO TUNE

Light filaments. Adjust C-3 and C-5 to about half-open. Vary the condenser C-1 and coupling between L-1 and L-2. If nothing is heard, change the adjustment of C-3 and C-5 and try again. Once the latter are adjusted, they may be kept so for all wave lengths.

How to make high inductance coils.

Wind coils with No. 36 gauge magnet wire, cotton or silk covered. Make a form by gluing two circular shaped pieces of cardboard about three inches in diameter on either side of a small empty thread spool. Wind the wire in the channel thus formed on the spool the number of turns indicated in the table below. Wind the turns hap-hazard, and do not try to make the turns evenly side by side.

Question Box for Radio Fans

B. F., Roxbury—The diagram of the Armstrong hook-up published today will answer your question. The hook-up you mention should be sufficient for ordinary purposes without amplification. An ordinary amplifier circuit cannot be used with the Armstrong super-regenerative set, and cascade amplification is impossible. The two tube hook-up shown today should be at least as efficient as a plain regenerative with two stages of amplification.

J. G. S., Revere—The set you show is a crystal set. It is impossible to estimate the range, for that depends on many things besides the set; but you should have no difficulty with a good aerial in hearing Medford, WAAJ and the new Lewis station. To install it, you will have to rig a piece of antenna wire, costing one cent a foot, from eighty to 150 feet long as high as possible above the ground. You can, for instance, string the wire from your house to a tree or pole. This wire should be insulated. Another piece of wire is attached to this, and carried to a lightning arrester and into the house. This wire is attached to the binding post marked "A" or aerial. Another wire is attached to a water pipe and carried to post marked "G" or ground. I am sure that since you cannot get out, you will be able to find someone to help you, or I will get someone for you.

S. M. E., Roxbury—You should be able to get WGI, but it is impossible to be sure of the range of a crystal set. Weather conditions lately have been poor for radio work, and Summer is not an ideal time. Because of modulation, radiophone is not as powerful as code, so that is why you get one and not the other. Since there were no call letters mentioned, it is impossible to say what station you heard testing, but would hazard a guess that it was WAAJ. Your trouble may be inability to tune, and I suggest that you borrow a wave-meter somewhere and find out what wave length you are getting.

EDGAR SPENDS EDISON CASH 'ON SPOT'

That millions of dollars of the consumers' money is spent every year on the sayso alone of President Charles L. Edgar of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company was asserted by Leonard L. Eldon, the electrical engineer, at the rate hearing before the State Department of Public Utilities.

Edgar spends millions, makin'g decisions "on the spot," and letting the consumers' money go out without consulting directors or anyone else. He does it year after year.

These remarkable admissionsns caused Attorney Grenville H. MacFarland of the Boston American to demanded to know if the Edison board of directors were "dummies."

Eldon said he didn't think so.

WHY BIGGER SALARIES.

Eldon, called as a witness to the stand by Attorney MacFarland in the crusade of the Boston American and the city of Boston to force down the electric rates for the benefit of the 135,000 consumers in Greater Boston, invested himself in these admissions by attempting to prove good and sufficient reasons why the Edison officials draw down much bigger salaries than the officers of the Cleveland company.

In Cleveland they sell more electricity at lower rates, and get smaller salaries. Eldon said the Edison officials are of superior ability.

"Explain it," said Mr MacFarland.

"Why," said Mr Eldon "I am used to seeing Mr. Edgar make decisions on the spot involving large sums of money."

"Have you a dummy board of directors?"

"I protest," said Attorney F Manley Ives of the Edison

"Let the galled jade wince," said Mr MacFarland. "Answer the question." "No, sir. I don't think so," said Mr. Eldon

DECIDES ON MILLIONS.

"Tell us about these 'decisions on the spot,'" said Mr MacFarland. "Within the year," said Mr. Eldon, "Mr. Edgar has made decisions on the spot involving millions of dollars."

"Without consulting the directors or anyone else?" said Mr. MacFarland "I don't know that he doesn't consult them," said Mr. Eldon.

"You don't see him consult them?"

"I don't."

"You make the suggestion, involving millions, and he approves it on the spot?" Yes sir."

Mr. Eldon said the Edison officials run the business here, while the Cleveland Company is controlled by a holding company.

"You mean the officials there are figureheads?" said Mr. MacFarland "It is run by the holding company," said Mr. Eldon.

"You mean it is run by bankers who have no knowledge of the manufacture and production of electricity, who have no technical skill" said Mr. MacFarland.

DIRECTORS DON'T DIRECT.

Mr. Eldon said he was not sure how far the bankers relied upon the technicians for advice in running the company

"Don't the directors of your company have anything to do with the policy of the company?" said Commissioner Everett U. Stone. "Yes with the policy," said Mr. Eldon "but not with the operation."

"Are your directors dummies for Mr. Edgar?" said Mr. MacFarland "I don't think so," said Mr. Eldon

When the hearing adjourned Mr MacFarland was piling Mr Eldon with further questions to ascertain if the Edison Company could justify its high salaries with the lower salaries of the Cleveland Company.

When the hearing is resumed next Wednesday, the American and the City of Boston will begin that phase of the fight to compel the Edison to serve those customers who have refused to pay the coal-clause charge on the ground that it was unjustifiable and without any basis of justification

MAY END HAGUE SESSION TOMORROW

The Hague, July 13 (By the Associated Press) Actual dissolution of the Hague conference on Russian affairs probably cannot take place before tomorrow as the session of the sub-commission on credits has been postponed until then and no general meeting is set for today.

20,000 SEE BIG FIREWORKS AT BRAVES FIELD

Most people have never seen all the fireworks in their lives that they wanted to. But about 20,000 folks who passed the turnstiles at Braves' Field, got a liberal measure of class boomah stuff.

It was probably the biggest crowd which ever assembled at Braves Field for anything except a world's series game, and it was certainly the biggest fireworks show which ever exploded in our midst

All the people who wanted to see Robert E. Lee, the fire queen, were permitted a glimpse of the daring little lady, when she made a tour of inspection just before the big flare off. But it was too dark to see her face

There was a large brass band in attendance, which accompanied the dynamite with appropriate music, mostly patriotic But the band leader got so excited watching the fireworks that he played "The Star Spangled Banner" three different times during the evening The third time half the crowd refused to stand up. It was too much of a good thing.

"Scrapping the Navy" followed a wonderful exhibition of set pieces, comics fireworks and rockets. It took place in a section of the field where some scenic painters had built a young ocean with ships in it. Through the ships came miniature warships, which pelted one another with bombs and rockets and flashed and flared and blew up and sputtered to the complete satisfaction of every land lubber in the grand stand.

It was probably the loudest entertainment since the war in France The rattle and batter and bang and sputter and crash of the big field pieces and the huge bombs could be heard in Portland, Maine, by a listener with good ears

And that final bombardment. Oh boy, what a noise

Comprising 6985 suits, our vast Spring and Summer three-piece suits tailored from smooth and unfinished worsteds; cheviots, tweeds, pencil stripes, including about 400 blue serges, in sizes to fit every man — regulars, stouts, shorts and longs in models both conservative and sport clothes. Every suit Morse-made for this season's selling. Morse values are always by far the greatest, owing to efficiency in manufacturing and low rent location, and with the added inducement of the refund, an opportunity unsurpassed is offered every man in New England.

"Why?" The Refund

Business acumen necessitates clearing up stocks twice a year. Some years ago we decided the so-called clothing "sale" was entirely too promissory and promiscuous, not at all an example of finest business method. It held too much of the "fooling the public" element.

We decided on the "refund" as the ideal method and as far as we know it is the only system that absolutely protects the public from deception.

A real Morse Innovation—and one that has made thousands of friends for this great business.

Flapper Finds Dock-Walloping Tough Job; Would Junk Ships and Use the Parcel Post

CARGOES IS CARGOES AN' THEY GOTTA COME OFF

Unloading bamboo and feathers is fun, but these heavy boxes—well, that's something else again' Me, I tried it, and I know' That's little me pulling that box of rubber you see in the picture. Look's easy, but just try it on your piano' Me for scuttling the ships and using the parcel post!

As a Longshoreman She Doesn't Mind Handling Bamboo, But Draws the Line on Those Smelly Hides and Heavy Stuff; Rubber Cargo Will Grow Up to Be Flivver Shoes

By THE FLAPPER.

The "Karroo" had docked at East Boston with a cargo of lemons, rattan, tapioca, pepper rubber, hides, soy beans and the makings of everything on a Chinese menu from Sub-gum to chow-mein.

I mention these items because all of 'em had to be hoisted out of the hold and assorted and stacked up on the dock. An whatta job! I know because I did it myself. Foreign trade is more trouble than it's worth.

East Indians, with small mustaches and loose blue blouses pattered about the deck. One of them sat paring endless potatoes with an unconfortably long and sharp knife. Every now and then he'd leave his potato for a few minutes while he playfully chased one of his companions, with loud cries and a great show of pantomime intended to indicate imminent decapitation. Altogether it was a great lil ol' tea party.

DAN LACKS A HEART.

From the hold of the ship great wooden cases of the above-listed articles were appearing with terrible regularity.

And that is where I came in.

"Would be a longshoreman, would ya?" taunted Dan O'Brien, the boss, shifting his eating tobacco to the lee side of his face. "Didn't I tell you it was no child's play?"

"That's all right," I said. "Only I think you might let me unload the bamboo. You give me all the heavy stuff. An the ladies don't smell so good on a hot day like this."

"It's the same to a reg'lar longshoreman," returned Dan. "You're too p'tic'lar. Look out! Don't be knowr no better'n to hang onto the ropes when the winchmen's started to hoist."

"I wasn't hanging on," I told Dan. "The hook caught in my sleeve."

"Well, y'almost took a ride down to the dock," said the boss. "An' none o' that. You jerked out as a hatchman, an' you gotta stay on the ship till she's unloaded."

WILL BE FLIVVER SHOES

What'd they wants go an' make us all this trouble for anyhow?" I asked Dan, as I slipped the iron hook into a load of rubber that was about to grow up to be flivver shoes.

"A-i-i-i-i-i-i-i!!!!" hollered a stern voice from the depths of the hold. Translated into good Boston, gentle reader, that means:

"Would you please be so kind as to hasten a bit up there?"

So I speeded up a little.

Presently the captain of the "Karroo" and his wife came out of the cabin and went ashore. The captain's lady was wearing the creapest hand washed, starched and ironed dress that I've seen this Summer.

I wondered what she'd buy in the shops on Boylston street. What would a lady buy who returned home in a regular store after months and months in Hong Kong, Shanghai, and other strange ports of what the movies call the Yellow Seas?

Hair nets? Silk underwear? Ice cream sodas?

But I didn't wonder about anything long. That's the trouble with a job like dock walloping. It never gives you time to think your own thoughts.

THERE GOES THE TAPIOCA!

"You're holding up the whole works," ranted O'Brien. "If you can't be quicker'n that you'll be outa a job."

"I'm through anyhow," I said, letting a load of tapioca drop overboard where it probably cooked into a fine pudding.

"But before I go I'd just as lief tell you how this work could be made much easier.

"How's that?" asked Dan.

"Send all this junk parcel post—is this the way out?

CHINESE PROTEST CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

Peking, July 13—Feeling against Christian education in China is rapidly increasing, it has become evident, as shown by the Chinese press. Articles from Amos Apple stated that an anti-Christian movement should be started with the formation of twenty anti-Christian organizations in Peking University was spreading rapidly over China.

THE SHOEMAKER WHO BECAME A GENIUS

Jean Baptiste Rousseau, 1671-1741

Like Hans Christian Andersen, the Danish poet, Rousseau was the son of a shoemaker, and himself a shoemaker like Andersen, too, he was destined to wander over Europe for years before he was recognized and his poems and epigrams became classics in French literature.

Another striking example of the many times genius has found lodgement in a shoemaker's cradle.

Why your Shoe Repairman's opinion on Rubber Heels is worth listening to

THE next time you want a pair of shoes "fixed up" take them to the repairman yourself—and talk with him.

He can tell you a lot about rubber heels.

There is more to learn about rubber heel quality and service than perhaps you ever thought of.

Incidentally, you will get a line on him, too—how seriously he takes his work, and his obligation to put the utmost quality in every job he turns out.

Does he carry a full line of U. S. Spring-Step Heels?

Or is he still putting on the everyday kind of rubber heels?

U. S. Spring-Step Rubber Heels embody the complete application of the science of rubber manufacture to the making of rubber heels.

They are made by the one company in this country that grows its own rubber in any considerable quantity—the United States Rubber Company.

The oldest and largest rubber organization in the world.

The Company that has everything at stake in seeing that its rubber products deliver the utmost in service and quality.

If the shoe repairman you are patronizing now doesn't feel the obligation to give you U. S. Spring-Step quality in rubber heels—there is one nearby who does.

He can tell you a lot about rubber heel quality and service.

The only company in this country that grows its own rubber in any considerable quantity.

DEMPSEY WILL PROBABLY BATTLE WILLS IN SEPTEMBER

RIVAL FIGHTERS BEGIN SECRET TRAINING

By JACK CONWAY.

Jack Dempsey will probably battle Harry Wills "in Sweet September." Too bad Bert Williams, famous colored comedian won't be able to be in a ringside seat. Bert dearly loved "Sweet September" as well as a regular fight. But Williams has passed on. He is now probably making the spirits laugh by his funny stories and wonderful dialect songs.

Wills, though, won't lack for supporters when he enters the ring against Dempsey. Maybe Bert Williams' spirit will be close to the ropes to give encouragement to great efforts. Then there will be thousands of live wire fistic fans who will be cheering from afar for Wills to win.

It will not take either Dempsey or Wills more than four weeks to get into condition. Unlike some of our champions of other days Dempsey and Wills always keep in the best of physical condition.

Dempsey has been boxing daily in sparring exhibitions and says he only requires three or four weeks in order to get ready for a clash with any man in the world.

Wills, like Dempsey, always keeps fit. He works daily as a stevedore in New York. And when he completes his day's work, he returns to his home. No bright lights for this famous ring warrior.

Interest in Bout Is Now at White Heat.

The interest in the meeting between Dempsey and Wills is now at white heat. The authorities have agreed to permit the battle. The fans want to see it. Then why any delay?

Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, and Paddy Mullins, business director of the challenger, are shrewd enough to realize that the quicker the bout is staged the better for all parties. Tex Rickard, the promoter, also knows that it is best to hold a much-talked match without too much delay.

Richard is probably waiting until after the Leonard-Tendler bout, which will take place at Boyle's Thirty Acres on July 27, to tell the world he has completed arrangements for the meeting between Dempsey and Wills.

Bob McKinley would be willing to offer a million dollars for the match so as to get the affair for Revere or Braves Field. Matchmaker Joe Goode of the Arena A. C. and Alex McLean of the Armory Club would also be willing to bang up fancy purses for this great contest, but it is feared that Rickard has the inside track.

Jack Kearns told this writer when in Boston that he would give the Dempsey-Wills match to Rickard, all other things being equal.

September Would Be Best Time for Bout.

The middle of September would be the best time to stage the match. By that time most people would have returned home from their Summer vacations and would be all set for a little trip to Boyle's Thirty Acres.

Dempsey and Wills, it is said, have already started secret training. Neither man wants to be caught napping provided the date for the bout is set for September.

The New York press is taking cruel slaps at the proposed Willard-Dempsey bout. It is pointed out that Willard is so fat that there would not be any room for Dempsey in the same ring with the former champion. Rickard was planning to put on the Willard match before the big tussle between "Tiger Jack" and Wills, but the attitude of the press and public will probably cause him to change his plans.

REVERE RING SHOW IS DECLARED OFF

The proposed bout between Louis Bonah of Bridgeport and George Shade of San Francisco has been called off by Bob McAuley of the Unity Club of Revere.

Leo P. Flynn, manager of Shade, informed the Unity Club that Shade was seriously injured in his bout at Albany, Monday night, and would be unable to meet Shade.

McAuley then made an effort to secure a suitable opponent. Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, Phil Krug of Philadelphia, Augie Ratner of New York, Jack Delaney of Bridgeport and Jeff Smith of Revonee N. H., all turned down offers to meet Bonah, claiming that they would not meet such a formidable opponent on such short notice.

Cantabs Defeat Lincolns

The Cantab All Stars of Cambridge defeated the Lincoln B. B. C. of Somerville at Lincoln Park, 9 to 4. Maloney, Cantab twirler, had the Lincoln's at his mercy. Allen batted for a perfect day, getting a home run and three singles. The score by innings.

SOX MUST TAKE BRACE TO KEEP IN RUNNING

The Speaker gang of Indians have collected two right off the reel and have a chance to make a clean-up if the Red Sox don't get busy. The Indians looked like a real ball club in their opening game. The Red Sox had nary a kick when they lost that one, for they couldn't have won it; not when they didn't score any runs at all, at all, Alanza. And holy smoke as the flames went up from the burning church the wild and woolly Westerners were too classy for the Back Bay fellahs in yesterday's fracas.

The name of Coveleskie will be one of the most treasured in the history of the national game if any more of that family come forward. Stan's brother was a Giant killer in the days of 1900, and now Stan himself is some bird with the delivery.

Wednesday's game was a sad affair in some ways, for the Cleveland players did not try to prevent the Red Sox scoring in the last inning. But as many of the spectators had departed for home and mother and the 6 o'clock feed bag long before that riot was staged it didn't do much good, although it did no harm. The fans took it good naturedly, although usually they resent such patronizing by another club

The Red Sox showed so amazingly well against the Browns with whom they split three double-headers, and should have won five out of six games if the breaks went their way that the fans have forgiven them for much of their bad work this season, but they must perk up and win today and tomorrow if they will remain in the good graces of the people who pay the freight.

Cobb and his Tigers are booked to play here Saturday. Ty is one of the very best attractions in baseball, only second to the Hambino himself. He has quite a nifty team and is quite a manager. If Saturday is fair and the Red Sox do well today and tomorrow. Oh, boy, there will be some attendance to see the Georgia peach and his hirelings on that afternoon

So, now, Huckie, coax and tease and kid the buckos along and get them to win today and tomorrow. That's a good old scout.

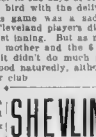
LEAHY REFUSES TO BE QUIET

Daniel Leahy, leader of the North Cambridge Knights of Columbus, is down, but he's not out of baseball. Only a few days ago terrible Dan was hit by a pitched ball in a game by Jim Shea, the St. Joseph's C. A. twirler, and the boss of the Knights had three ribs broken.

Leahy was advised by a couple of surgeons to stay out of baseball for a few weeks anyhow, but the scrappy little fellow is the same chip of the old block. He either can't obey orders or he don't want to. Dan sneaked into the South Boston battle the other evening, but failed to stop the boys from the Peninsula district winning a victory.

SHEVLIN EAGER TO TROUNCE PERRY

Inasmuch as the all-star boxing show at the Arena next Monday night is for the benefit of the disabled veterans of the World War patrons will not be called upon to pay war taxes. Instead the tickets will be disposed of at the prevailing popular prices, $1, $2 and $3, with nothing additional for Uncle Samuel. Boxing fans need entertain no fears that Monday night's show will be in the nature of a series of exhibition bouts. On the contrary, each and every one of them will be hard fought from beginning to end particularly is this true of the bout between Eddie Shevlin and Jack Perry



Eddie Shevlin

For three weeks past Eddie has been boxing daily at Kelly & Hayes' gymnasium with Johnny Fox as a sparring partner. Until such time as he felt confident of his condition he did not enter into negotiations for a bout. Today he feels fit and is confident that in this, his fifth meeting with Perry, the award will go his way and the final tally stand three to two in his favor.

Pat McCarthy and George Robinson clash in the event listed just ahead of the feature number. This should be productive of some heavy slugging, for the winner has been offered a match with a middleweight of national prominence. Whitman Gould and Mike Paulson should furnish a torrid session in their tenrounder. In the curtain raiser Charley Parker and Dinny Glynn go over the ten-round route

Reservations for this show can be made at the offices of the Arena A. C. No 33 Court street, or by telephoning Main 6124

HODDER LOOKS BEST IN JUNIOR GOLF

By F. G. THAYER.

Clark Hodder came through yesterday in both the morning and afternoon matches. The morning round against McGrail was settled at the 16th hole, where Hodder won by three up and two to go playing the outward nine in 39 strokes, and at the conclusion of the match adding two and a half more.

The same was he maintained against Paul Sullivan in the second round, disposing of him at the 15th hole, winning five up and three to go, his score at the end of the 16th being the same as in the morning, two under par.

The unexpected defeat of Clark Hodder at the hands of Sullivan, of Brookline, proved to be the upset of the tournament. Each of the boys had reached the semi-finals by the time they met, and Sullivan's victory over the latter left him the only Brookline golfer at the top of the ladder. There were fourteen men in the original field, and Mr. Andrews's task was not an easy one. Sullivan, who won the cup in the same breath, thus ousting Love as one of the dark horses.

The fact that Love won the third and fifth holes with two strokes to spare, the weak opposition MacAndrew offered in the Paul Revere affair, and Arthur Atwood's defeat by Hodder will be subjects for discussion in the two matches played yesterday. Love, the red-haired lad who is going through the motions of golf for the first time, was one of the last put on the card that was in the cup. Ed Simpson and Abbott Atwood also play real high-class golf until the last hole. A brassie swing two on at the 16th with a mashie-iron 4th put Simpson four and Atwood five. Simpson took a two-shot lead at this point and halved the match at the 17th, winning two in a row. This they retained until the 19th, which Simpson annexed with a four, coming in two under par.

Hodder and Sullivan were all square at the 16th, where the boys friends joined them to see the last of the match. At the end of the seventeen holes the boys were still all square and Ahlstrom's two-shot lead at the 17th was cut down to one stroke. Sullivan, the 17th hole, to continue in today's play

Arthur Sweetser won handily from Paul Manson. Sweetser won the 1st hole, M Batchelder was defeated against Horace Fay, and H. H. Swan over Fred Fessenden also played well in defeating P. D. Bowen and H. F. Taylor

James Lally of Brookline had an easy time against Michael Kelley getting the blue ribbon at the four tenths. In the afternoon round with the odds on the long game he defeated Lally, and in the consolation round Robert Cox of Toledo

LANDIS ORDERS A GAMBLING CLEAN-UP

Chicago, July 13.—Judge Landis, Baseball's High Commissioner, ordered a sweeping investigation of baseball gambling.

The order came as a result of the arrest of forty gamblers at the game between the Cubs and the Giants here

Commissioner Landis asked that the names of the bettors and the individual players named in the betting be turned over to him to determine whether any of the players "worked according to form."

The raid in which the detectives swooped down on the grandstand took place at the end of the fourth inning. A dozen well-known bookmakers were taken into custody. Nearly all gave fictitious names and addresses.

Isadore Savian, the head of the bookmakers' ring, was arrested, after he had accepted a $200 to $100 bet that a player who had singled would get to second base.

A number of the big bettors escaped in the melee that happened as patrol wagons from six station houses drew up at the baseball park gates.

This Day in History—July 13, 1922

THIS is the anniversary of the assassination, in 1783, of Jean Paul Marat, by Charlotte Cordey. The young girl stabbed the French Revolutionary leader to death, believing she was saving her country. She was brought to trial and died calmly.

Mars Is Stalking Off

HAVING passed his recent apposition with the sun on June 10, and his nearest approach to the earth on June 18, the red planet of the war-god, Mars, is receding slowly into space, though still deeply interesting the astronomers watching him.

Souls for Sale

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

What Would YOU Do?

IF you were beautiful young Remember Steddon, a Massachusetts minister's daughter, whose sweetheart died before the wedding, would you try to bring up your baby among those who knew you in your own home town? Or would you run away for a fresh start with new surroundings? If you had your living to make, would you try to get into the movies? Dr. Bretherick, the family physician, advised Remember to go West. This she did, writing her parents a fictitious tale of having married and lost her "husband." She falls from a cliff and is told that the accident caused the death of her unborn child. Remember arrives in Los Angeles and determines to "pay the price" for a chance in the movies, but is refused. She is coached by Director Claymore. She takes an auto ride with him and is held up by a bandit in the midst of a love passage. This struggle of a young girl to work out her own salvation is stirringly told in Rupert Hughes' greatest novel. Go on with the story.

MEM was becoming something of a technician. The mechanics, the artisanship that sustains every art, the alphabets of expression, the wireless codes for the transmission of emotion, its creation in a transmitter, its preparation for the receivers—all these things no artist can ignore and succeed.

The more eloquence the orator feels in his heart the more he considers his tones. The more earnest the writer the more piously he coins his dictionary. The more glorious the singer the more he studies his breath control, his coups de glotte, his white notes, his transition cours. The more fervid the composer the more he ponders acoustics and tone combinations and the inventions of new instruments. The more exact the painter the more he analyzes his values, the more he seeks new tubes, new brushes, new chemistries of color.

Only the amateur, the dawdler, the dilettante despises his craft and depends on passion or that egotist, vanity which he calls inspiration.

So the ambitious actor must examine always with the tools of thought, the engines of suffering.

Once when Mem was shocked at a flippancy of Tom Holby's concerning his art, he rebuked her earnestly.

"You're not really well acquainted with your art unless you can joke about it. What's funnier than the idea that being funny is not as serious as being funny is choky? There was never a finer actor than Nat Goodwin, and I heard him say once, speaking of his Shylock: 'I was great in the last act. I knew I was great because the audience was weeping and I was laughing it, and when you can guy a serious scene you've got to be great.'

Mem began to understand also but slowly, that passing fun of one's serious emotions is a form of humesty, a covering of naked pain, a shy retreat behind a mask of smiles.

She began to be able to talk flippantly of her art and to talk of it in trade terms.

One day when she was posing for a big close-up of herself asleep the director asked her to try to squeeze a tear or two through her great clenched eyelids. She started even him by saying, with an effin earnestness:

"What kind do you want? One great like glow teardrop, or a lot of little shiny ones?"

He was shocked but he hid his emotion of wonder in a careless:

"Give me one large tear about five inches of an in diameter."

All right," she said.

And she did. It oozed through her long lashes and slipped accidentally down her cheek into her hair. And knowing what he knew of its control he felt his own eyes wet and the jaded camera man whispered, awesomely, "Great".

In another scene, where more tears were required of her, he noted that while she waited for the camera set up she had her hands rolled at her lips and she seemed to be whispering to her.

Curious, he asked, "What are you up to now?"

She gazed at him. "I was praying God to send me beautiful tears."

He shook his head and walked away, gasping.

Then Simeon the chief financial power in Tom Holby's company saw Mem pacing up and down by herself at a distance from the set. He watched her and noted that she leaned against a canvas wall and hid her head in her arm. Her shoulders quivered and shook with forlorn woe.

His heart was touched and he could not resist an impulse to go to her and proffer his sympathy in her evident grief. He touched her on the arm and asked, with an almost mothering solicitude:

"You poor child! What's the matter?"

She whirled on him in surprise and stared through a shower of tears. Then a smile flew from her blubbering lips and she giggled.

He felt back as if he had touched a serpent. He was disgusted with himself for making such a fool of himself and wasting his precious pity on a little trickster.

The climax of Mem's shamelessness was reached one day when Robina Teele and the great Miriam Yore visited the studio and stopped for lunch in the commissary. Mem was put on her mettle by the grandiose condescension of Miss Yore and by the suspicious jealousy of Robina Teele.

The tear oozed through her long lashes and slipped reluctantly down her cheek.

The matter of tears for sale came up and Miss Yore spoke of how she got hers.

"I find that if I use the tone of voice intentionally which I use unintentionally when I am really crying, the tears come. It may be just muscle memory or it may be that I grow very sorry for myself."

Robina did not know how she got hers.

Margaret Anglin said she could cry at will over a fried egg or something. So can I. I just imagine the scene and say to myself, 'I cry' and I cry till the director says, 'Cut!'"

Neither of the famous women thought to ask the rising Miss Steddon how she manipulated her lachrymal art. Tom Holby, feeling that she was slighted, brought her into it by asking her her system.

"Prayer and brute strength," said Mem.

Robina was in an assertive mood and as one violinist might challenge another to a contest or an orator propose a debate to an other, she called for a duel of tears. She thought she could send Miss Yore back to the Grand Opera she had come from.

"Let's have a crying contest," she said.

I should have to have music," said Miss Yore.

"Come over on my set and we'll give you your favorite tune," said Holby. He dragged Remember Steddon along, though the two veterans did not take her into account.

Holby explained to the director that they were to have a field day of emotion, and he consented to defer the scene he was about to shoot.

Miss Yore wanted the theme of the "Liebestod" played over and over. The wheezy little portable organ made a sad mess of Wagner's braided harmonies, but the violinist caught the cry of the melody.

Robina could cry best for "Just a Song at Twilight" but she gracefully yielded to the choice of music of Miss Yore.

Mem had never heard an opera, grand or comic. But the staunchly climbing anguish of the tune caught her up on its ulnions, and lifted her into that other where the souls of imaginative artists flw in all disguises and assume all personalities.

Under the cover of the company and the crew stood aloof and watched in amazement as the two world-famed stars and the rising young asteroid, Mem, began to war with their own features like athletes tuning up or shadow boxing.

The three women walked apart for a moment grimacing and forcing themselves into a state of agony. Robina achieved the first sob, she broke and flung herself on a couch and sobbed aloud. Mem jealously decided that she was cheating and rather looked down on her shoulder-work. It was pumpy.

She stared at Miriam Yore, an ambuiant statue of heroic postures lifting her hands to heaven, carrying them clasped to her fulsome bosom, and indulging in the despair of a Medea or a Cornwall princess whose draperies must also weep about her beautifully.

In Mem's eyes Miss Yore was as crass as Miss Teele was screeny. Neither of them seemed quite human. Grief to Mem was a homely, unlovely, tearing, disordering thing. To cry gracefully was not to cry at all.

She was the realist the small-town girl whose heart gives way, whose features crumple, whose eyes blear and reek with bitter, devastating brine.

The audience called Robina wonderful. They called Miss Yore beautiful. They paid the untimely tribute of adulation. But when Remember Steddon abruptly flopped into a chair like a floor rag doll, and began to choke and snivel, to dab at her eyes and whinkle her chin, to fight and hate the spurting tears, to sway her head in futile protest, to give vent to ugly little rasping noises that seemed to saw her throat raw and to grow extraordinarily wet and gitiful, the spectators felt a something familiar out of their own childhood, out of their own old loneliinesses and defeats. Their own faces puckered, their hearts were nests of pain, their eyes went dunk and were blurred.

They gave her the ultimate tribute of sympathy and echoed her misery.

Miss Teele stopped crying to stare. Miss Yore ceased her magnificent stride. Both forgot to be artists. Before they realized that Mem had not really broken down in a genuine grief, they had surrendered the battle and were crying with her.

And she, having set in motion the wheels of sorrow, could not stop them. There is so much to regret in this world and in any life, that it is perilous to start the tears rolling, lest they crush the soul.

Her triumph astonished Mem and all the witnesses. But she was almost destroyed with her own victory. She was sick and ashamed of the blasphemy of her abuse of such holy things as tears.

Afterward, however, she could laugh again, and when Tom Holby told her that she had wired the earth up with her two rivals it was a thrilling thing to hear.

The contest was the talk of the whole studio, and the publicity man sent broadcast, to the enlargement of Mem's fame, her brilliant etude in tears.

It was all working toward her glory as a mistress of emotion.

The director, Kendrick, was in a desperate frenzy to complete the pictures. The hard times were reducing the incomes of the producers and exhibitors at a terrifying rate.

The apathy that accompanies all financial depressions sickened the public appetite for everything. The critics were saying that the emptiness of the theatres was due to the stupidity of the plays, but just as stupid plays had prospered mightily when the boom was at its height. The critics were likewise saying that the moving pictures were unworthy of the patronage they were not getting. But the fault was with the public dyspepsia and not with the eaks.

In any case, the vast cinematic industry was in as serious a pitch as the steel, the copper, the lumber, and all the other gaunt industries.

In spite of the ferocious slashes in salaries, wages, sets, most of the studios were declaring holidays of a month or more.

The orders had gone forth to rush the Holby picture to a conclusion. The big night storm scene had been scheduled for the final takes. They would appear early in the story, but too many accidents might happen if they were shot in sequence. It would be fatal if any of the actors were injured at any time, but it would be disastrous to have an arm or a head broken or a case of pneumonia in the middle of the work.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

By ANN LISLE

DISMISSING the possibility of Rosa Cordova having "designs" on Pat, and waiting only to close the door between us and the inner offices, I plunged into our affairs at the point I felt needed shrewdness.

"Mrs. Cordova, you spoke to Pat and my client Rosa have had a long session of having your afternoon headquarters here, and you frankly discussed our morning's conference. I wonder if you realize how little even his own family know of my husband's business affairs or his reason for visiting your part of the country?"

"Secrets we have, you and I—is it not absurd?" trilled Rosa Cordova with seeming delight.

"I suppose so," I conceded.

"Secrets we share with the lunkeeper's niece—who ranks in the pecon class in my country," sneered the stranger, adding with cool effrontery: "Secrets for her—which we keep from Jaime his nearest and dearest."

"But surely he told you to preserve secrecy at any cost. He does not want them to know—"

I stopped, catching myself back from saying "how near the brink of ruin he is and how much danger there is that some of them will go over." Suddenly realization came to me that, however, much this dazzling little creature knows of Jim's difficulties in adjusting matters down in the oil country, she may not be aware that he has no resources at home. There is no reason why Jim should tell the Cordovas that all he has is involved. In my anxiety to keep Rosa Cordova from revealing too much of Jim's own people, I must beware lest I reveal too much of her.

"What he does not want them to know you need not fear I will betray," bridled Jim's emissary. "He trusts me—Jaime. Perhaps if you have more faith in—what you say? the judgment of your husband, you did not have to worry so much over little Rosa Verdad!"

"Verdad," I repeated, seizing on her pet word as if it alone would produce the elusive understanding it doesn't seem possible to establish between us. "But it isn't Jim's judgment I question. It's the amount of information he had time to convey to you. I thought you might have come away in a hurry."

"Since I bring you no letter presenting me?" asked Rosa Cordova sweetly, but with a suspicious quickness I could almost fancy her waiting for the chance to emphasize this omission and pouncing on it the minute I gave her a plausible opening.

"You know that I am ready to receive all his friends with cordiality," I said, feigning composure I was far from feeling. "Mrs. Dalton is the head of the family and would expect a letter from her adored brother. The letter you brought Mrs. Dalton was required to penetrate her reserve and assure you the home my thoughtful boy wanted to open for you. But in my case the fact that you come from him is enough—and he knows. There's another thing, however, on which I am sure he counted."

"What is it—that fetiher thing so shrilled Rosa Cordova.

"The fact that Mabel Storrs can explain you to me.' I replied equably.

"The innkeeper's niece!" laughed Rosa, so scornfully that I decided to make a stand at once.

"Our country is a democracy, Mrs. Cordova; you do not fully grasp that, and all it means," I said firmly. "A rail-splitter was our greatest President. Mabel Storrs may have started humbly enough, but she is a wonderful business woman with a big future and she's also a loyal friend. Besides, she is a woman of rare discernment and fine feelings. Jim trusted her. I trust her. I think he expects you to meet her on a plane of equality."

"You can be most eloquent, but to me a peon is a peon. Jamie he know better than to interfere with my feelings. Jamie—how you say—he take the trouble to understand that if he deal with an ar sinocrat he must act accordingly. He never forget that I am —Rosa Cordova."

At her words a sudden thought flowered in my brain. Jim would never have chosen Rosa Cordova as his necessary unless well assured that she is a good business woman. And from the point of view of business even an aristocrat of old Mexico would probably not snub a woman who might be very useful if properly handled. There was some mutual motive in Rosa's attitude toward Mabel. It seemed to me that the visitor was actually attempting to goad Mabel to the point where she would fling down the reins of authority in Jim's office and refuse to go on.

As if my thoughts had been the closest possible guide to the real puzzle on which I'd been working vainly until I chanced to relax the key-pegs, they fell suddenly into place. Rosa is trying to goad Mabel to frenzy.

Mabel's account of her cruel experience at Tampico when her uncle's safe was tampered with and the Cordova title to a "gusher" stolen, rang through my memory. Her final words were as clear as if they had been spoken within the hour.

"I loved Dick too much to come forward and tell of the circumstantial evidence which pointed to him. . . . And Dick West filed his claim to the very spot the Cordovas had expected it to protect for them. People said I was his tool ha ha ahhha.

Rosa Cordova evidently guessed some part of the truth. This is probably the driving force back of whatever else impelled her to come to the city—to deal with Mabel. But—does Jim share her suspicions of the girl he has left in charge of his office? Does he even know of them? Or is Rosa Cordova acting independently of him on this score?

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

By FRANK H. MELOON.

B. C. Forbes, conductor of column, returns shortly from vacation.

We have never lacked faith in the earning capacities of New England railroads. They cover territory which has resources that can never be exhausted. Improper manipulations in the past have handicapped some of our lines and mismanagement has done the rest. Now they are coming back.

* * *

In common with other railroads in thickly-populated areas they have had to face active motor truck competition. Perhaps they have suffered more from motor truck traffic inroads than most other lines, because this is pre-eminently a manufacturing centre. Wool and cotton hauls between Boston and nearby textile cities once meant much to the Boston & Maine and the New Haven.

The motor truck now gets a great deal of this business, and the suggestion, made by a Boston & Maine official—surely first-class from a railroad standpoint—that the railroad lines run trucks themselves to keep this short-haul freight, has been neglected.

* * *

Families seeking new homes at a distance a few years ago trusted imported their household goods in box cars. Now they go by auto truck. Many other instances might be mentioned where the railroads have lost freight business.

And it is not alone rail freight traffic that has suffered through the growth of the motor industry. Passenger traffic has been lost in enormous volume.

* * *

Just as our railroads were on the verge of showing balances on the right side of the ledger, a new rod ink supply had to be obtained, for the coal-strike came along to cut down shipments; but that is only a passing phase of the situation, which will right itself automatically.

Example of the dark side. And after all, isn't it a minor reverse that is the best stimulant for the average business man?

* * *

July figures on the Boston & Albany, Boston & Maine and the New Haven, we believe, will show a remarkable contrast to those for the same period last year. They will not convey by totals alone the vast amount of improvement, for vast sums are being expended in adding new rolling stock and in improving the road.

It seems safe to predict, however, that Boston & Albany's surplus after charges for the other two roads' lessened deficit after charges will reflect the brighter condition of business in general to an extent that will prove surprising.

John Wanamaker's advice to business men on his 84th birthday is worth repeating. It was to "look up and look forward." He said he had great sympathy with merchants as they are looked upon as simply money makers, but that he had known many business men who have had larger visions than counting up profits of the year, who have given employment, hope, courage and life to homes and brought together workers of the world.

We all respect philanthropists. It is well to recall that most philanthropists are, or have been, merchants.

TELEPHONE CHANGES SUBSCRIPTION PLAN

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has made a change in the terms of subscription under the Employes Stock Plan. The section, which formerly permitted an employe at any time after six months from the date of initial deduction under a subscription for stock to pay the balance ther unpaid and receive the stock subscribed for, is cancelled.

Oils Are in Recessions as Big Market Weakens; Call Money Off to 3%

U. S. STEEL HAS ANOTHER DIP UNDER PAR

Oils are leaders in recessions as the New York market weakened in afternoon trading, with several at their lowest for the day in the final hour with a rally near the finish. Call opened dropping to 2 per cent.

U. S. Steel again dipped under par on bearish reports of recent curtailment in production due to labor shortage and coal shortage. At 99½ it was off 1¾.

Oils showing the greater losses were at their lowest: Mexican Petroleum 7⅞, at 185; Pan-American B 3¼, at 87¾; Pan-American B 3¼, at 68⅜; Phillips Pete 3⅜, at 45⅜; Producers and Refiners 2⅝, at 30; Standard Oil of California 3½, at 103; Standard Oil of New Jersey 3¼, at 180¾, and Cosden 2¼, at 46.

Others receded a point or more.

HIGHS FOR YEAR.

Studebaker, after making a 1922 high, up ⅝, at 137¾, sagged to 136.

Allis-Chalmers made a new year's high, up ⅝, at 27½.

Western Union sold at 101, up a point, at its highest since 1916.

Mexican Seaboard made its low on the big board opening 34⅛ to 34, then dropping gradually to 30⅛. Certificates started at 30⅜, rose to 32 and 33, then sagged to 29¾. Both rallied later.

BEECHNUT MAKES BOW.

Beechnut Packing made its appearance on the board at 39 and rose to 39½.

American Sugar was down 1⅛ at 78½.

Consolidated Gas was active and strong, up 2¾ at 122. Brooklyn Rapid Transit weakened, off 1⅝, at 24¾.

HAMMOND DEFENDS MEXICAN SEABOARD

President Harris Hammond of Mexican Seaboard in a letter to stockholders, refuting estimates of damage from salt water in Tobasco field and commenting on reduced production, says: "Great quantities of oil will be taken by us from Tobasco, but at reduced rate of production."

He further states that the largest stockholders have not been selling the stock, but have materially increased their original holdings. Company has set aside 10,000 shares for sale to employes at $40 a share.

Boston Notes

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS—Do not buy any more stocks just now unless it be specialties like Western Union, which have special move about them.

INTERNATIONAL MOTOR advance reflected announcement of higher prices and full-up business.

MILLION-SHARE days are looked for by many, though some brokers insist there will be a few weeks of dull trading.

SPECULATING on probable action by Mexican government is very risky, and same can be said of trying to anticipate action by our own Congress.

IT WOULD not be surprising if Steels as a group led the second phase of advance on the big board.

MORE ACTIVE reductions in the auto trade are reported impending. Inventory holdings this month are expected to lower general output of passenger car, but truck production is expected to increase.

AHMEEK expects to show increased output of red metal for current month.

RATE IS CUT TO 3 P. C. BY BANK OF ENGLAND

London, July 13 (By International News Service).—The minimum discount rate of the Bank of England today was reduced from 3½ to 3 per cent., the lowest since the war.

The 3½ per cent. Bank of England rate, just reduced to 3 per cent., had been effective only since June 29 this year. There have been four reductions in the rate already this year.

On Nov. 4, 1921, it stood at 5 per cent.; it was cut to 4½ per cent. on Feb. 16, 1922; to 4 per cent. April 13, 1922; 4½ per cent June 15, 1922, and now 3 per cent.

The previous reductions from the peak point of 7 per cent. were as follow: April 28, 1921, 6½ per cent.; June 23, 1921, 6 per cent.; July 21, 1921, 5½ per cent.; Nov. 4, 1921, 5 per cent.

The bank rate is now at the lowest figure since July 30, 1914, at the outbreak of the World War, when it was advanced from 3 per cent. to 4 per cent., on the following: August 1, 4½ per cent.; 5 per cent., and on Aug. 3 from 5 per cent. to 10 per cent.

Federal Reserve Banks Soon to Reduce Rates

Washington, July 13 (By the International News Service).—Rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve banks of the country will be cut in the very near future, it was learned officially at the Treasury Department. Present rate is 4 per cent.

It is unlikely, it was said, that the reduction will go below 3½ per cent., as compared with Great Britain's reduction to 3 per cent.

Ford's Canada Co. Pays 15 P. C. Cash Dividend

Detroit, July 13. — Cash dividend of 15 per cent. on its capitalization of $7,000,000, payable July 20 to stockholders of record July 15, is announced by the Ford Motor Company of Canada.

Plans for expansion recently were given by the company when it acquired several hundred acres of land fronting on the Detroit River and adjoining its original holdings. Purchase involved an outlay of $1,000,000.

UNITED FRUIT'S FLEET RAISED IN RATE WAR

Freight steamer Lavina, 5,300 dead weight tons, will be added at once to the Colombian service of the United Fruit Company, officials of the company state. This will make five American flag vessels in operation by the line from New York to Colombian ports in competition with the Shipping Board vessels. Officials of the company declare that their vessels are running full and that the additional ship will be kept in operation if conditions remain unchanged.

Since the beginning of the ocean war several months ago cargo rates have dropped about 75 per cent. Passenger fares have been reduced from United Fruit Company from $170 to $160 to Colombia, effective on July 1.

In this connection, it was estimated yesterday by a United Fruit Company official that the Shipping Board was losing about $10,000 a round voyage on its Colombian vessels, making a total annual loss on operating costs, exclusive of depreciation and overhead, of about $500,000 a year on eight ships.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

By FRIEDA DAVIS

"SERENADE"
R. A. Walsh Production
Maria Del Carmen Mir'n Cooper
Her Fiance.....George Walsh
Ramon .....Bertram Grassby
His Father ....Joseph Swickard.
Directed by Raoul Walsh

AS I understand it, "Serenade," the headline attraction at the Modern Theatre this week, was made and released some time ago. In that case, it came before the deluge of Spanish productions and must have been a distinct novelty at the time of its debut.

Today, coming after a storm of such films—"Fascination," "The Spanish Jade," and others, for example—it still stands out as having more than an ordinary amount of local color, warmth, and the actual breath of Spain. Sunsplashed walls and extras lanconversly playing guitars are not so much artistic props as casual backgrounds. Raoul Walsh has done an uncommonly good piece of work with his story.

George Walsh is the particular shining light of the affair, though Miriam Cooper is featured. Miss Cooper is one of the most beautiful actresses on the screen today. She has remarkable eyes, an attractively-shaped face, and one expression. She never sighs and she never cries—and she never acts. But she is beautiful.

George Walsh, however, lends all the action to the picture. He doubles as Douglas Fairbanks most of the time, jumping from crag to crag, leaping on and off of horses, and bounding in and out of windows. If Fairbanks is to give us but one production a year, there is little reason why Walsh should not grasp the opportunity to win a little fame as an acrobatic hero.

"ALWAYS THE WOMAN."

THE COMPANION picture on the bill is a Goldwyn production starring Betty Compson. "Always the Woman." This, too, is a film that was made some time ago, before Miss Compson went over to the Lasky company, in fact.

The story, of reincarnation and Egypt, is sketchy, but interesting. Miss Compson has improved on her work since she made the film, but she showed ability then. The supporting cast is very satisfactory.

ELSIE FERGUSON AGAIN.

NEXT MONTH will see Elsie Ferguson back under the Klieglights making a new film. She will make a film version of "Outcast," in which she appeared on Broadway last season.

Thomas Meighan has been added to the list of the lucky stars, who will work in the eastern studio. Holt, who is on his way now, will be there as well as Miss Ferguson, Alice Brady and Pola Negri.

LIONEL BARRYMORE SIGNS.

LIONEL BARRYMORE has once more signed to play the lead in a Cosmopolitan production. And once more he will be seen in a story of Jack Revie's. "The Face in the Fog," which is one of the "Boston Blackie" series.

Tom Lewis, the Vandeville favorite, will discard his monologue in favor of the silent drama, for a time at least. He, too, has signed with Cosmopolitan and will start work immediately on a picture.

BARTHELMESS AND HERGESHEIMER.

WHEN Richard Barthelmess was a Griffith player, he spent all his spare time reading Joseph Hergesheimer's works and then going about talking about it. It was a safe bet, then, that he would use one of that writer's stories when he became a star.

He did, and he's going to do it again. "To'ble David" was such a success that he has asked Hergesheimer to write him another story. The author is said to be at work on a new story now.

NEW SERGEANTS GIVEN FLOWERS BY NEWSIES

The newsboys don't forget old friends.

When they learned that John J. Manning and Thomas N. Trainor, special officers attached to Police Station Two, City Hall avenue, had been promoted to sergeants, they started a collection.

John J. Maloney, city circulation manager of the Boston American, presented the two men with handsome floral horseshoes. A token of the esteem in which the boys held the officers.

"Young Happy" Rubinovitch started the collection. It needed but a gentle reminder to the thousands of boys who daily sell papers on the street corners. Then came a flood of nickels and dimes. The quota set by "Happy" was quickly filled and the two horseshoes, each containing 500 pinks, were purchased.

A delegation visited Commissioner Wilson. "As representatives of the thousands of newsboys we want to thank you for the promotion of these two men," "Happy" told him.

"It's one of the greatest pleasures I've had since I took the office," Commissioner Wilson replied. "It does my heart good to see the little merchants of the streets taking such an interest in the department."

Our Political Prisoners

Go to the Mass Meeting on Boston Common Saturday and Aid in Urging Their Release

On next Saturday, between 2:30 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. there will be a Mass Meeting on Boston Common at the Parkman Bandstand. This Mass Meeting will be held for the purpose of urging the release by the United States government of those men who are now held in Federal jails on account of alleged political offences committed during the war.

It is a disgraceful fact that this country alone of all the countries which fought in the war is still holding its political prisoners. It is still more disgraceful that many of these prisoners were convicted on evidence which would only have been entertained by hysterical, war-minded juries, and under interpretations of the law which were made by hysterical or timid, war-excited judges.

Nowhere in the world did the administration of justice so lose its poise and forget itself and become so brutal and unjust and unjudicial as in America.

All the political prisoners have been released long ago in the other countries. It is high time that we released ours.

When we refer to political prisoners, we refer to men convicted for expressing honest opinions concerning the war and its justice. We do not refer to men who did anything in carrying out their opinions which hindered in the prosecution of the war.

Anybody who has real pride in his country will join in the attempt to remove the shame of still retaining as prisoners men independent enough to have opinions differing from the conventional opinions and who dared to express them. That is not the way to promote democracy or to develop political courage and independence, so necessary to a free people.

Go to this Mass Meeting if you can and lend your aid to its objects.

Return the Railroads

Esch-Cummins Law Should Be Repealed and the Lines Given Back Into Government Hands

Senator La Follette proposes to move the repeal of the guarantee of dividends under the notorious Esch-Cummins law by which the railroads were so foolishly turned back to the old private managers from government operation.

The sentiment of the country will undoubtedly be behind Senator La Follette. In Iowa, which Senator Cummins himself represents, Colonel Brookhart carried the Republican primaries for Senator on that very issue. His own Republicans repudiated Senator Cummins on what he considers the most important act of his political career.

Strength to Senator La Follette's arm! The Esch-Cummins law ought to be repealed. The railroads ought to be turned back into government hands upon terms which will be fair to the owners of the railroads, fair to labor and to the public. Then we should have no interrupted transportation, we should have no strikes, no sullen employes, no hostile public and private capital which ought to go to the upbuilding of general enterprises will then be released. Then the brains tied up and atrophying in the public functions would also be released to be sharpened by competition in those enterprises where competition prevails. And above all, the benefit of the arts and sciences applicable to transportation would inure to the public and we should see the railroad fares and freight rates gradually being reduced. We should also see the end of the creation of those enormous private fortunes out of railroad graft and chicane which threatened the stability of the republic.

To Break Up Unions---

Good Leadership Will Prevent It

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Mr. Gompers tells the unions that "a band of dictators cannot destroy the unions." A lawyer said to his client, "They can't put you in jail for that," to which the client replied, "But I AM in jail."

To destroy unionism would be a great calamity for this country, and even more harmful to capital than to labor itself.

It would also be harmful to the public peace and a backward step paid for dearly later.

Nevertheless, experience in the war shows that Government thoroughly supported by the law-making machine can do WHATEVER IT PLEASES in this country.

The Labor Board CAN outlaw unions that refuse to abide by its orders, and will. Railroad and other corporations will be only too quick to make a virtue of recognizing and acting upon such "outlawing." Wise management and leadership, rather than enunciation of noble sentiment, however lofty, are what the workers need just now. Leadership and good tactics.

More "Russias" Needed

Or Is One Enough?

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

The allies, which now means France and England, will make up their minds this week whether one "Russia" is enough in Europe, or whether they will have another, by making Germany's condition that of Russia.

Unless the French, not only permit but ENCOURAGE AND HELP the continued life of the German Republic, look out for a big European smash, dragging down everybody in western Europe, with the possible exception of England.

And if you have bought French bonds, look out for your investment. You will be able to buy francs at a bargain before long.

Real Miracles Easy to Prove

But It's Hard for "Eva"

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

French scientists of the Sorbonne have carefully investigated the spiritual manifestations produced by Eva, a famous medium. They have to report that there were no be true manifestations, or, as they put it, "results were negative." Anybody can call up spirits from the vasty deep and brighten up good enough spirits to satisfy ignorance and credulity, or pitiful old age seeking for comfort. But nobody produces a spirit big enough to satisfy a trained scientist in his prime.

Other miracles are proved easily enough, wireless, radio activity, etc., for the reason that those happen to be true miracles.

The Voice of New England

Mr. Hays and the Movies

Editor Boston American:

I am a churchman who tries to mix common sense with religion, and I do not like the publicity which Mr. Hays is giving the moving picture business. I think he has done nothing yet to deserve any commendation, and some things which are really wrong. Its talks, but says nothing, and it is my opinion that Harry Leon Wilson, by his one book, "Merton of the Movies," has done more good and comes much nearer earning $150,000 in getting better pictures.

Hays has absolutely no right to say that "Fatty" Arbuckle cannot be identified with the movies, and I am one of many who can feel no admiration for a man who would do a thing like that and then talk on as though it had never happened.

He put his personal opinion and authority ahead of the opinion and authority of a jury and the public, and I think that all influential newspaper men have been wrong in withholding criticism.

The Arbuckle case was bad and it was made even worse. The party was a disreputable affair, but facts are facts, and we have disgusting scandals all around us.

For years Arbuckle has been able to lighten the troubles of millions of his fellowmen by his clean comedy entertainment, and because he was so well known by doing just that thing he, in return, gets treatment the equivalent in magnitude, but the reverse in kind. Anyone of us who have put little happiness, in comparison, into the lives of the people around us, would have fared much better. It is unjust and un-Christian, and I am in a position to know that we people who go to church regularly do not necessarily contribute the most toward good, and that we are sometimes little short of criminal in the effect which our judgments have upon the lives of others.

Hays did something to the public which he had no right to do, and makes everything he now says about public opinion valueless. It is certainly the public which should say if it wants or does not want to see Arbuckle on the screen, and from all I hear there seems to be no doubt but that it does.

Hays has taken an unfair advantage of his position to give himself importance and put another man through a further humiliation which the jury said he did not deserve and public opinion by no means demanded.

It was a publicity stunt pure and simple. Clara Hamon and others have been kept off the screen by proper methods, which were not cheaply sensational or an insult to the public, and it was done before Hays entered the moving picture business.

Hays is a brother churchman, but I do not admire him for what he has done thus far to make us think better of the movies.

He has not been square with the public, and I believe that if he were criticised by the newspapers instead of given unreserved praise that the moving picture situation would be more quickly and thoroughly improved and the public enjoyment of the movies less depreciated while various reforms and organization changes are being put through.

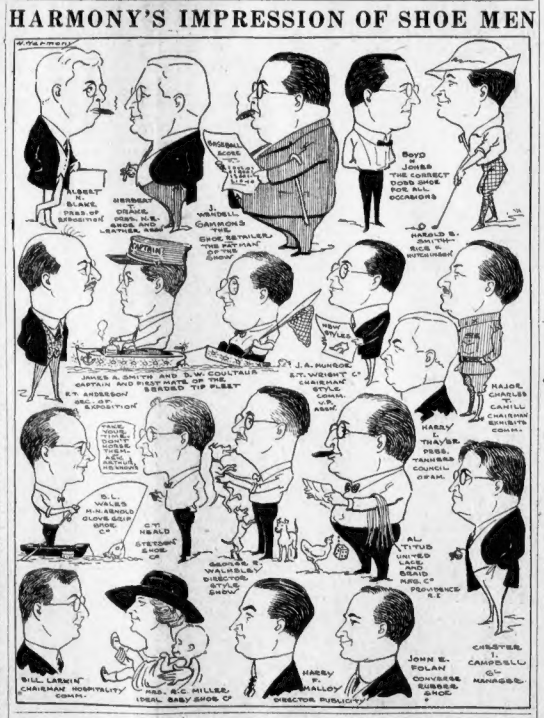
HARMONY'S IMPRESSION OF SHOE MEN



SEEN AND HEARD

DEAD Seas, Buried Cities, Sunken Gardens—but did you ever hear of an Inland Beach? Boston has one. Tremont street among the jazz element and flapper population is known as "The Beach," and they parade up and down there for precisely the same atmosphere that is obtainable on any salt and sand beach—breezy, swift and dustless.

The cafeteria craze has struck Boston. Over a score of cafeterias have been opened in this city within a short time. Boston is the last city in the country to accept them in any numbers, which brings to mind the fact that they are extremely popular in the West. Some of the finest eating places in San Francisco are cafeterias—and they are located in the CELLARS.

Quincy square undoubtedly at this time of the year handles more auto traffic than any other point in the State. It is the converging point of all routes leading to the main arteries to the South Shore and the Cape. Yet it is one of he best policed and has the most smoothly running traffic plan of any municipality. The answer is, moderate driving while approaching the square.

Pool ball ties up traffic! "Watch this one kid," said a dapper youth as he twisted the reverse English. Instead the ball shot out the second story window next to the Ames Building, rolled into the groove of the car track for a long, slow coast down to Adams square. A large furniture auto van was running in the car tracks at the time and could not get out, nor could it run over the ball. Hundreds watched the pill roll down the tracks, while the van slowly trailed after it.

Digging of clams supposed to have absorbed pipe-conducted germs on North Weymouth shore seems to have been stimulated by the ban placed upon it, yet the local physicians have so far been called upon to attend no more than the normal number of patients.

Our Back Bay flapper's skirts are short,
But she thinks her make-up wrong
Unless she follows the latest fad
And wears her earrings long.

Thirty Love! At the baseball game last Saturday it was announced that Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen defeated Mrs. Molla Mallory for the women's world tennis title. Thousands listened attentively to the announcement. Five years ago the announcement of a tennis match or golf tournament at a baseball game would have been jeered and hooted as being effeminate and out of place at a ball park. Such is the stride the two sports have made.

In these days of low necks and short skirts, special significance appears to attach to the sign over a Columbia road, Shawmut Corner, establishment, which proclaims it the B. Modest Shoe Shop.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THE PHONOGRAPH

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I've been asking several hundred people if they knew how any kind of sound can be produced into a phonograph record, and how it can pick up the sounds from the crowd with such clear and distinct voice, but they were all just as ignorant as I am about it. Think many thousands would look upon information about this with great interest.—H. N., Chicago."

YOU may be right about the number of people who cannot tell how the phonograph first catches a song, fixing it in microscopic waving lines on a brittle wax disk, and then reproduces the song anywhere and at any time until the disk is worn out.

The key to understanding the principle of the phonograph is the fact that sound is due to vibrations (usually of the air), striking upon the drum of the ear, and thus producing impressions on the brain. It does not matter how these vibrations are produced, provided only that they have a certain force, size and frequency of repetition.

The first thing was to capture the voice and fix it permanently so that its vibrations could be mechanically reproduced just as if they had been caused by the breath and vocal chords of the speaker. This was done by stretching a membrane of goldbeater's skin, or similar material, over the end of a drum or funnel in which the original sounds could be concentrated. In the middle of the outside of the membrane was fixed a stylus, capable of cutting a thin groove in the prepared surface of a cylinder with which it was kept in contact, and which was caused at once to rotate, and to move steadily endwise, under the stylus.

Then, the cylinder being set in motion, and a voice speaking or singing into the drum, the membrane vibrated in unison with the sounds, and as it thus vibrated the stylus attached to it cut a continuous spiral groove in the prepared surface of the rotating cylinder, and this groove varied in depth in correspondence with the varying pressure exerted on the membrane by the waves of sound.

Thus the bottom of the groove became a fixed image of the sound waves, and, being given sufficient rigidity to retain its shape, could be used to reproduce those waves by handing back the original vibrations to the membrane, which would turn them into the original sounds by setting the air above it in motion.

For this purpose a specially made point was substituted for the cutting stylus, and the cylinder was set back in its original position, so that it in again rotated the point rose and fell as it passed over the undulations of the groove, and its slightest motion was communicated to the membrane, which, in its turn, reawoke its sound waves in the air, and thus faithfully reproduced the voice of the singer or speaker.

In its first form the phonograph was necessarily crude, but in a few years, without any departure from the fundamental principles, improvements in detail were made until the instrument as it is today was perfected. Now, we have flat, round discs instead of rotating cylinders, turning under the point connected with the membrane, and delicate vibrating discs of glass take the place of the original cruder membrane. We also have records in which the sound waves are recorded by sidewise undulations of the spiral groove which runs from the periphery toward the center of the disc. It is interesting to study these grooves under a strong magnifier. If you know the music you can follow it on these undulations almost as if it were written on a musical scale.

ARE YOU AN EARLY RISER?

In this month of the year's longest day, how much of the early hours of these long days do you spend in bed?

Except in rare cases, have you ever seen the sun rise?

When you have been obliged to get up at daybreak you have spoken of it as beastly, heathenish, to have to get up and shout with the birds and the chickens.

Do you know that if you really lived right it would be as much pleasure for you to get up in the morning as it is for the birds, which begin these days with song in trilling melodies.

Something wrong with your physical or mental makeup, or with your habits, if you do not want to get up early these bright Summer mornings.

Study your own case.

Is it too many late suppers, or socia; functions?

Is it because you know that when you do get up you will have to work for a living, and you are plain lazy?

What pictures of your new day is so disagreeable that you are afraid to meet it?

Look the day in the face early and get the joys in store, which cannot be obtained at any other time in the twenty-four hours.

YES—'TIS TRUE.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

PERSONS born on this day of the year are noted for their common sense and for the tenacity with which they will adhere to an opinion once formed. In fact, the word stubborn might better fit their resoluteness if it were not for the fact that they are usually right.

If you were born on this date, however, you should try to make your mentality more pliable by widening your interests beyond their present scope.

A child born today will be unruly and adventurous and rather cruel and ungenerous to other children. A certain amount of rigid discipline will be necessary.

Famous persons born this day:

General Nathan Bedford Forrest of the confederacy.

William J. Tucker—President of Dartmouth College.

Roger Wolcott—Governor of Massachusetts.

John Jacob Astor, 4th—Capitalist.
